WORLD FLIERS FACING PERILS IN TODAY'S HOP

MOUNTAINS AND SEA ENDANGER AVIATORS

Trip to Embrace 2,100 Miles; Plane Fueled, Pair Rests at Khabarovsk.

Khabarovsk, Siberia, June 28 (A. P.).—With the motor of their speedy monoplane still roaring its defiance of oceans and high mountain ranges, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty landed here at 2:30 p. m. today (12:30 E. S. T.), after a 350-mile flight from Blagoveschensk.

Their first intentions were to continue their round-the-world race against time as soon as their plane, the Winnie Mae, was refueled, but after the tanks were filled, an operation requiring more than two hours, they decided to remain here overnight.

The fliers were greeted by a large crowd of Russian men, women and children when the Winnie Mae coasted down to the landing field. Khabarovsk was keenly interested in the American fliers and their race around the world against time. The inhabitants have followed keenly the flight since the aviators left Moscow.

Hazardous Flight Looming.

Post and Gatty remained at the field until the Winnie Mae had been refueled and then went to a restaurant, where they ate a substantial meal. Both retired early, leaving word that they be called before daybreak. They were reported late tonight to be sleeping like tops on the eve of the most hazardous flight of their journey and one of the most hazardous ever undertaken by man, a jaunt of 2,100 miles over Bering Sea to Nome, Alaska.

It was uncertain here just what time they would start, or whether they would break the flight by stopping at Petropavlovsk at the southern end of the Kamchatka Peninsula. Attendants at the aerodrome believed, however, they would be in the air at dawn.

Their route lay over high mountains and seas, and they faced the possibility of storms and fog, but they seemed cheerful enough. Though much fatigued upon their arrival here, they must cross the Strait of Tartary, the Sea of Okhotsk, Kamchatka Peninsula and the Bering Sea before sighting the North American Continent again near home.

Weather Reported Clearing.

Although clouds were reported over the Okhotsk Sea earlier in the evening the latest reports tonight said the weather was clearing along the route the fliers planned to take. The Tokyo Observatory broadcast the weather report. Light breezes and clouds were reported near Sakhalin Island. The fliers will have the advantage of a full moon for night flying. Weather conditions farther along their route were uncertain here.

Thus far misfortune has struck the American aviators only once. Otherwise their swift flight has been attended by exceptional good luck.

They lost 14½ hours at Blagoveschensk when their plane bogged down in the soft mud of the landing field there. They had planned to get some much needed sleep at Blagoveschensk, but they worked throughout the night trying to raise the plane from its soft bed. An American tractor, with the assistance of several teams of horses and half a hundred citizens, finally did the job, but not until this morning.

Horses Prove Unavailing.

Horses tugged and pulled at the bogged plane all night long, but not until the military came to the fliers' assistance with their American tractor was success achieved.

The fliers took off from Blagoveschensk at 10:30 a. m. today (9:30 p. m. Saturday, E. S. T.) and landed here four hours later.

Today more than three-fifths of their 15,000-mile flight lay behind

Slavery in Liberia

By GEORGE S. SCHUYLER

Reports of Liberian Slavery Discovered To Be Well-Founded

Stories Current for Year Have Brought Promises of Correction From Freedmen's Republic But Government Officials Are Evasive and Forced Labor Still Prevails.

Editor's note—The Post today begins publication of a series of articles dealing with slavery in Liberia. The articles will appear daily until the series is concluded.

For nearly a year the world has been shocked by various well-authenticated and official reports of the existence of slavery and forced labor in Liberia, the West African Negro republic. It seemed incredible that this state, founded in 1821 by the American Colinization Society as a haven for American freedman, should have become a slave pen.

"The Love of Liberty Brought Us Here" is the legend gracing the republic's seal and for the century of its existence, during which time the Negro pioneers with difficulty held their own against slavers and hostile tribes, the outer world has thought of Liberia as the one place where black men were free. And then in September, 1930, the report of the International Commission of Inquiry revealed the sordid truth in detail. Charged with guilt before the civilized world, Liberia eagerly promised to remedy the reported evils and set her house in order.

That there has been little improvement in Liberian conditions and that many of the evils complained of still exist is indicated by the fact that as late as May 21 the League of Nations adopted the plan of the Polish member, August Zaleski, to send social, sanitary and financial commissions to the republic in an effort to straighten out its affairs.

Dr. Melville McKenzie, yellow fever expert, has been sent to the country to do his best, while Dr. W. M. Howells, deputy director of public health on the gold coast, began cleaning up the filth of Monrovia, Liberia's capital, the latter part of March.

On February 12 of this year I arrived in Monrovia for the express purpose of determining to what extent the Liberian government was remedying the evils which the international

BISHOP BEAUCHAMP, METHODIST, IS DEAD

Richmond, Va., June 28 (A.P.).—Bishop William Benjamin Beauchamp, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, died at Stuart Circle Hospital tonight. Bishop Beauchamp was 62 years old and was widely known for his work as foreign ambassador and missionary diplomat of his denomination.

His forceful personality, his efficiency as an organizer and his executive ability caused Bishop Beauchamp's selection to head the great centenary campaign in his church and he carried it to success by raising $35,000,000 for world-wide mission causes. Later upon his elevation to the Episcopacy he was placed in charge of European missions, in opening of which he was the moving spirit.

In 1925 he was chosen president of the World Brotherhood, an interlaymen with headquarters in London, succeeding in this high office the Hon. William Ward, of London.

As a member of the official delegation representing American Methodism, Bishop BBeauchamp attended the 200th anniversary of the celebration of the Wesleyean Fellowship at Oxford the same year and was accorded the honor of occupying the very room at Oxford that had belonged to John Wesley, founder of Methodism.

Again, in 1928, Bishop Beauchamp was accorded high honors by being named to represent the Southern Methodist Church at the international missionary conference in Jerusalem.

He was general superintendent from 1926 to 1930, after his episcopal administration in Europe, of the North and South Georgia conferences and of the mission in Mexico. He was accredited with work through which the former mission field of Mexico was developed into a national Methodist Church.

The following year he was given the Episcopal district embracing the Baltimore and Virginia conferences, permitting him to live in his native State of Virginia, at Richmond.

Bishop Beauchamp was born at Farnham, Va., March 16, 1869, the son of Dandridge C. and Margaret Beauchamp. He was educated in the pub-

PERU SENDS TROOPS TO QUELL REBELLION

Garrison at Cuzco Demands New Electoral Law Be Revised.

Lima, Peru, June 28 (A.P.).—A regiment of infantry sailed tonight for Mollendo aboard the cruiser Grau to join the troops at Arequipa in a move against the garrison at Cuzco, where two infanttry regiments rebelled last night and served upon Lima a demand for revision of the new electoral law.

In an official communique issued by the Junta government it was announced that the Fifteenth infantry at Cuzco, apparently supported by the Thirteenth infantry at Puno, had taken over the Cuzco garrison in the night, but that other army units quartered near Cuzco had not participated in the defection.

"A group of officers, headed by Commander Cabrera, revolted at Cuzco and deposed the authorities there," the communique said. "The insurgents pretend to justify their activities by convening a small group of persons lacking importance as leaders of this movement and alleging that the electoral law should be reformed."

The rebels sent a telegram to Lima signed "Popular Committee," informing the government that the people of Cuzco had decided to request that the junta replace the electoral law with another which would be easier to understand. The message said Commander Cabrera had been chosen as representative of the insurgents.

The prefect of police at Arequipa telegraphed that Cabrera, leading the Fifteenth infantry in revolt, had called a meeting of a few Communists, who took possession of the Cuzco police headquarters, but that the police and civil guards remained loyal to the government at Lima. One of the first moves of the insurgents, his message said, was establishment of a censorship.

Woman Breaks Wrist, Is Cut in 3-Floor Leap

In a three-story leap yesterday, Mary Holliday, 25 years old, received only a laceration of the forehead and a fracture of the left wrist.

According to police, she jumped from the third floor of her home on M street near Thirty-second street northwest. She was despondent, according to police, who took her to Georgetown Hospital.

NEW DIVORCE CANON CHANGE IS SUGGESTED

Episcopal Board Would Give Clergy Leeway on Marriages.

PROPOSAL ALLOWS REFUSAL OF RITES

Planned Amendment Provides Prayer Book Ceremony May Be Used.

New York, June 28 (A.P.).—The joint commission on divorce of the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church, made public today an amendment to its proposed canon on divorce. It provides for the marriage of divorced persons in Episcopal churches, by the clergy of the church, using the regular prayer book service, but gives to any clergyman the right to decline to officiate.

This amendment goes a step farther than the proposal published April 27, which authorized Episcopal clergy to remarry divorced persons under certain conditions, but forbade the use of the prayer book service and the use of Episcopal churches for the ceremony.

Members of the commission said the change was made to meet a storm of adverse criticism of the original suggestion, but there are indications, they added, of a fresh wave of protest over the amended plan.

In an amendment to the amendment, a minority bloc of the commission proposed that the marriage of a divorced person "may not be performed by a minister of this church, but if the parties are married by civil authority no impediment shall exist to their membership in the church, and a minister may, in his discretion, bless the union."

Action in September.

All three plans will be presented to the general convention of the church in Denver, September 16, for action. Meanwhile, the commission will hold another meeting to draw up a final report, and has invited criticism and suggestions.

Other changes made in the proposed canon includ a concrete clause providing for the organization of the ecclesiastical courts in each diocese. In the last report this was presented merey as a suggestion.

There is, likewise, a rewording of the statement which must be signed by all persons before they can be married by an Episcopal clergyman. It now reads:

"We desiring to receive the blessing of the church upon our marriage, do solemnly declare that we hold the ideal of Christian marriage to be a lifelong physical and spiritual union of husband and wife for the purpose of mutual fellowship, encouragement and understanding, for the procreation (if it may be) of children and their physical and spiritual nurture, and for the safeguarding and benefit of society."

Two Schools of Thought.

Still a third plan was put forward by Origen S. Seymour. It met with the approval of several of his fellow members of the commission.

It provides an ecclesiastical court shall decide whether the conduct of the divorced person seeking to remarry was in any slight way responsible for the divorce and whether the applicant reasonably could have done anything to avoid the separation.

If these questions are answered in favor of the applicant, permission for

PARIS-BERLIN DEBT HOLIDAY CONCORD SEEN

MELLON CONTINUES PARLEYS IN FRANCE

Press Is Optimistic That Nothing Can Prevent Agreement.

(Associated Press.)

A Franco-German understanding to absorb the differences separating France and the United States on a debt moratorium plan was foreseen yesterday by officials in Washington.

As negotiations between the United States and the interested powers for an effective one year's holiday on intergovernmental debts entered their second week, counter-proposals by France on President Hoover's plan for a complete moratorium still offered obstacles to a complete agreement.

Officials said these obstacles could be overcome by a Franco-German agreement, which would still bring economic relief to Germany and preclude commitments by the United States.

Agreement Believed Near.

The President's plan contemplated no reservations. The French answer, however, contained suggestions of procedure which diplomats discussions have failed to reconcile with the American viewpoint. An analysis by State Department officials of the conflicting viewpoints was said to show only differences remaining as to the method of procedure to make the administration's plan effective.

After three days of discussion between the French government and Secretary Mellon and Ambassador Edge, to reconcile the viewpoints, officials said the two nations appeared in agreement on the broad outlines of the Hoover plan.

Since Great Britain accepted the plan unconditionally, the London government is being kept informed of the negotiations. Acting Secretary Castle, of the State Department, had a long conference today with Sir Ronald Lindsay at the State Department. Secretary Stimson, now en route to Europe for talks with European statesmen, is being advised by wireless.

Use of Credits Is Issue.

One suggestion in the French reply which offered an obstacle to agreement was asked guarantees that Germany would not use credits from funds under postponements for other than economic purposes. Such a demand was one which officials here feel the United States could not guarantee. Franco-German discussions, they said, however, could adjust this and other questions left unsettled by France's agreement to the broad principles of the Hoover plan.

The only official announcement yesterday by the State Department said Poland and Czechoslovakia had formally accepted the American proposal. Both countries are close to France.

In the absence of President Hoover, who was at his Virginia mountain camp, Acting Secretary Castle remained in the Capital over the week-end Mr. Hoover was in close touch, however, by telephone. Pierce De Boal, chief of the western European division of the State Department, and his assistants were on almost constant duty studying reports from

Hays, Church Council Clash on Film Report

Motion Picture Group Assailed While "Screen Czar" Charges Effort to Force Contributions, and Misstatements.

New York, June 28 (A.P.).—Charges by Will Hays that the Rev. George Reid Andrews had demanded part of a photoplay's revenue for a church and drama association and the minister's counter charge of misrepresentation against the motion-picture chief today marked publication of a survey of the Hays organization by the Federal Council of Churches.

The council's report, issued through its research and education department, assailed the Hays organization. Mr. Hays, in defending his administration, called attention to a letter from Mr. Andrews.

"Your department investigators," Mr. Hays said, "were fully informed of a letter written to the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, under date of June 14, 1928, by the Rev. George Reid Andrews, in his capacity then as chairman of the Federal council committee on religious drama and as executive secretary of the now reputedly disbanded Church and Drama Association. From this letter, a photostat copy of which will be gladly furnished to your organization, I quote, in part, as follows:

"That 10 per cent of the gross receipts of the picture (referring to the 'King of Kings') be paid into the treasury of our Church and Drama Association only so long as I am chairman of the board of trustees or executive secretary of the organization.

"If and when I should retire from the organization, the right is reserved to me to say whether what funds remaining in the treasury or coming into the treasury shall be payable to the drama committee of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. If for any reason neither of these organizations can receive the funds, then they shall revert to me personally."

From the day he was finally made to realize that the industry would not accede to this and subsequent demands for contributions, the Rev. George Reid Andrews has conducted a campaign of statements and charges against the organized motion-picture industry.

"In view of the complete silence maintained in the conclusions handed down by the department of research and education concerning this and similar situations, perhaps there is something to be said in favor of the ethics of the American industrial and business community."

The clergyman at his home in Bridgeport, Conn., issued a sharp re-

Service Hurried as Press Learns Plans; Mate Little Known.

Longview, Wash., June 28 (A.P.).—Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, evangelist mother of Aimee Semple McPherson, became Mrs. G. E. Hudson shortly after midnight today when she was married in an outdoor ceremony on the banks of Lake Sacajawea, in the heart of Longview. The Rev. J. G. Gay performed the ceremony.

The wedding originally was set for 2-p. m. today but was hastened when Mrs. Kennedy learned newspapermen had learned of her plans. A simple Angelus Temple double ring ceremony was read. In it Mrs. Kennedy promised "to love, honor and serve," her husband, whose home is New York City.

The marriage service was performed in the presence of the minister's wife, their young son, Ralph Gay, who was best man, and Mrs. Beatrice Oliver, former editor of the Angelus Temple Crusader, who stood with the bride.

After the ceremony the party left in "Ma's" automobile, which her husband drove. Their destination was unknown.

"She seemed very happy," the Rev. Mr. Gay said. "She made a very pretty picture in the moonlight with the lakeside shrubbery as a background."

The minister said he knew very little about Mr. Hudson, but de-

HOOVER DEBT PLAN PRAISED BY RASKOB

Democratic Chief Returning From Europe Impressed by Sobriety There.

New York, June 28 (A.P.).—John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, returned on the liner Bremen tonight from a two month's tour of Europe with praise for the Hoover moratorium proposal and the State of Temperance Board. He said he found conditions in the five countries he visited much better, psychologically, than they were a year ago.

"However, there is no question that the depression is world-wide," he added.

Of the Hoover proposal he said:

"It is a very constructive suggestion. I hope it will be accepted. It will do a great deal to stabilize world conditions."

The purpose of his trip was to escort his daughter, Elizabeth, on her first trip abroad. They toured Italy, Switzerland, France, Germany and England, mostly by automobile.

Mr. Reskob said he was particularly impressed by the way Germany has "played the game."

"They have tried hard," he said, "to comply with the terms of the reparations agreement, and have found it difficult, if not impossible. The striking thing is that there is no feeling of bitterness or hatred and especially there is no such feeling toward the United States.

"The German attitude seems to be that the war is over, that they were beaten and that they had better try to forget it."

Mr. Raskob was asked what he thought the political significance of the Hoover suggestion might be. He quickly answered:

"It is a constructive step that should not be weighed politically."

He refused to discuss Democratic chances of electing the next President. When questioned about prohibition and liquor conditions abroad, he said he had been out of touch with his own country and had not attempted to make a real study of the situation in countries he had visited.

"But," he added, "it is a fact that my daughter and I never saw a single intoxicated person in the two months we were traveling across those five countries and neither did we see a

PLUMBER DROWNS FOLLOWING STROKE

Companions Fail to Revive Capital Man Taken From Chesapeake Bay.

Seized with a heart attack while splashing in the surf at North Beach, Md., early yesterday morning, John Caldwell, 58, of 1516 D street southeast, was drowned in waist-deep waters of Chesapeake Bay, a few hundred feet from shore. The body was found in the shallow waters after other members of a party of four men who had gone to the resort for a week-end holiday noticed his disappearance.

Resuscitation measures were carried on for nearly an hour by the drowned man's companions pending arrival of a physician. Examination by the physician, however, indicated that Caldwell had sustained a heart attack and drowned while unconscious. Judge Thomas J. Hall, justice of the peace for Anne Arundel County, held an inquest over the body on Tracy's Landing, near where the drowning occurred. After hearing the testimony of the surviving members of the swimming party and the physician he issued a verdict of accidental death

Caldwell's companions identified themselves as F. A. O'Neill, 2120 D street northwest; Norman Andre, 211 Third street southeast, and J. F. Weikle, an employe of the Government Printing Office. According to Judge Hall, the men arrived at the bay resort late Saturday night and had gone fishing early yesterday morning. Not having much success in their piscatorial efforts, they decided to go bathing and donned bathing suits just after dawn.

The men testified, Judge Hall said, that they had waded several hundred feet and were splashing around in the water when one of the party remarked "Where's Johnny?" Becoming alarmed, they searched frantically coming upon the body after several minutes' feverish effort. Carrying their companion to shore, they began working in an attempt at reviving him.

Harold E. McCarthy, 1500 Taylor street northwest, driver of a taxicab which was said to have brought the men to North Beach, was dispatched for a physician. While on this mission, according to Judge Hall, he was arrested by a town officer on a charge of reckless driving when his car ran Adalona, San Sebastian and Madrid Suburb See Trouble.

LERROUX IS ZAMORA RIVAL FOR PRESIDENT

Madrid, June 28 (A.P.).—Spain today appeared to have voted for a republican form of government.

An unofficial check of returns after the polls closed at 4 p. m. in the election of a national constitutional assembly, which will draw up the country's constitution for its future government, indicated the Republican-Socialist bloc had gained a majority of the 467 deputies for the body.

Various disorders occurred, despite the provisional government's efforts for a peaceful electon. At least six persons were killed in disturbances.

Two persons, including a policeman, died in Adalona when Communists fought with police. Another was killed in a fight between Catholic Nationalists and Republicans in San Sebastian.

Other election brawls occurred at various points, including disorders in a suburb of Madrid where a mob attempted to burn the San Ramon Church and beat the parish priest, Genero Gonzalez Munoz, whom they accused of buying votes. Civil guards rescued the clergyman, turning him over to police, and saved the church.

24 Parties in Field.

The capital was mostly quiet and it was estimated that a large number of persons had exercised their franchise throughout the country.

The Republican-Socialist bloc, whose victory most political observers had predicted, is relatively conservative like the present provisional government.

Alcala Zamora, who was a candidate for the assembly in five districts, voted a few minutes after the polls opened at 8 a. m. He stood in line and was cheered. Later he went to the ministry of the interior, where other Cabinet ministers had gathered to watch the situation.

Maj. Franco Wins Seat.

Early indications were that Maj. Ramon Franco, fiery transatlantic flier, who has been removed as chief of the aircorps as a result of his political activities for the "revolutionary party," had been elected at Seville. This was expected to bring about his release from arrest in connection with an alleged plot for an uprising to establish an Andalusian Republic.

The Catalonian question, involving the future status of that province under the Federal Republic, increased in importance when it appeared that Francisco Marcia, provincial president, had triumphed with his Catalonian independence party. The question is now whether the independents will accept statehood under the Spanish Republic or insist upon a separate Catalonian State.

In Valencia the radical Republicans, under leadership of Minister Lerroux, were leading.

Although women were not allowed the franchise, it was apparent the triumph of the Republican-Socialist group in Madrid would mean that two women had been elected to the Assembly. They are Victoria Kent, first Spanish director of prisons, and Clara Campoamor, a Madrid attorney.

In Madrid troops and special police were on guard at strategic points, including Catholic churches, convents and monasteries, and newspaper offices, as a precautionary measure.

The new Assembly is scheduled to begin its deliberations July 14.

Minister of the Interior Maura announced several persons were wounded in disorders at Herencia, where civil guards intervened. In the town of Bollo sticks and stones were used by combatants.

Richmond Airman Killed in Crash

Richmond, Va., June 28 (A.P.).—Peter Meriwether Fry, jr., 32, was almost instantly killed and W. Raymond Williams was seriously injured when a light monoplane piloted by Fry crashed near the Charles Airport here this afternoon.

Witnesses said the little craft, powered with a three-cylinder motor, on taking off rose slowly and seemed about to strike trees at the end of the runway. When it was pulled up to get over the trees it stalled and fell from a height of about 75 feet.

Fry, who was dead when witnesses reached the plane, was holder of a private pilot's license. He was president-elect of the Richmond Lions Club. Williams, a salesman friend he was taking on a trip to Washington, was taken to a hospital, where it was found he had a skull fracture and a broken right leg.

Girl Olympic Star Breaks Limbs in Airplane Wreck

Betty Robinson Is Victim of Ship Flown by Her Cousin.

Chicago, June 28 (A.P.).—Betty Robinson, who won the 100-meter dash for women in the 1928 Olympic games, and who was counted upon as a member of the United States team for the 1932 games, may never compete again as the result of an airplane accident today in which she was critically injured.

Miss Robinson, who is 19 years old, and a student at Northwestern University, suffered fractures of her left arm and left leg, and a possible skull fracture when an airplane piloted by Wilson Palmer, her cousin, fell here.

Youth Imprisoned in Well Rescued as 5,000 Cheer

16-Year-Old Howard Smith Brought Out by Illinois Miners After Being Held 24 Hours by Cave-in of Walls.

Ottawa, Ill., June 28 (U.P.).—Howard Smith, 16, still smiling, although his legs were temporarily paralyzed and he was suffering severely of shock and exposure, was rescued today from a deep well where he had been imprisoned for 24 hours by a cave-in.

Five thousand persons about the well cheered as Howard was brought out alive. Since Saturday afternoon, when the youth was trapped in a well on his grandfather's farm, the crowd had been growing steadily.

Howard and his grandfather, Frank De Bolt, went into the well Saturday to repair the pump. Their work finished, De Bolt started out first, but as he reached the brink, the walls caved in.

The stone walls crumbled so that two of them wedged, V-shape, just above Howard's head and formed a protective arch.

The lower part of the well caved in too, however, so that the youth was imprisoned in solidly packed rock and dirt almost up to his shoulders. Between the caved-in material which trapped his feet and the arch above him was a space of some two feet.

Through the arch came a tiny streak of light, marking a narrow ficials with preventing further disorders at Seville and the Tablada air base. They believed an uprising, with which Franco was alleged to be connected, was plotted for today, when the Seville government was to have been overthrown and an Andalusian republic proclaimed.

Gen. San Jurjo hurried to Seville and, after bringing troops to the air station and arresting the leaders of the plot, announced that the situation was in hand. Other officers and soldiers there were said to have pledged allegiance to the government. Anarchists and syndicalists were reported to have been connected with the planned revolt.

One deputy was elected for each 50,000 of population.

Cabinet Members Win Seats.

As the tabulation continued, it appeared certain that Alcala Zamora and all members of his cabinet would have seats in the assembly.

Jose Sanchez Guerra, who recently announced that he still was a Monarchist but opposed to Alfonso as king, also was elected from Madrid.

Reports from Santander and Granada said that the Republicans and Socialist bloc had won big majorities in those sections.

The Communists carried only a few points, except in Asturias, where it was doubtful how much gain they had made.

Later dispatches said two persons were killed in fights between police and Communists at Almedilla, near Granada.

In Malaga, where the Republican-Socialists also apparently won a majority, one person was killed when police fired on a mob which refused to disperse in the Central Plaza.

Spanish General Strike Will Terminate Today

Orense, Galicia, Spain, June 28 (U. P.).—The general strike called here yesterday in sympathy with striking railroad workers will end tomorrow morning when the laborers return to their jobs.

A conference of city officials, workers and government officials agreed to accept the government's formula for settlement of the railroad strike and also agreed to safeguard against disorders at elections today. Bands played in the street and there was a general atmosphere of celebration.

Melville C. Harris Dead Near Esmont

Survivor of Old Virginia Stock Was Retired Teacher.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., June 28.—Melville C. Harris, retired school teacher, died yesterday at the family homestead, near Esmont. The funeral was held this afternoon.

Mr. Harris was the son of Col. George W. Harris and the grandson of Benjamin and Mary Woods Harris. Benjamin Harris was a Revolutionary soldier and built the Harris homestead, one of the older homes in the Green Mountain section. Col. George W. Harris was one of the county magistrates.

Several of the brothers of Melville Harris were in the Confederate army. Twin brothers, George N. Harris and Rushrod W. Harris, enlisted at the age of 19. One died at Centerville in front of the Northern advance June 30, 1861, almost a month before the first battle of Manassas. The other was killed at Frazier's farm, below Richmond, in the Seven Days fighting June 30, 1862.

Mr. Harris never married. Of a once large family of brothers and sisters, he is survived by only one brother James S. Harris, of the Esmont neighborhood.

Veterans to Be Guests On Cruise Down River

The Wilson Line will be host today to the District of Columbia Department of the American Legion for the entertainment of the disabled war veterans of Walter Reed, Mount Alto and Naval Hospitals, and some residents of the Soldiers' Home.

About 1,200 veterans will board the steamer City of Washington, which the line has donated for an afternoon cruise down the Potomac. Dr. B. C. MacNeil, department commander of the Legion, in charge of the outing, has been assisted in making arrangements by Miss Marjorie Woodsel, of the Jane A. Delano Post. Arrangements have been made for the Marine Band Orchestra to play during the three-hour cruise beginning at 1 p. m. Dr. MacNeil has arranged for a number of entertainers to help amuse the excursionists.

Three Persons Hurt In Maryland Mishaps

Three persons were slightly injured yesterday in two automobile accidents on Maryland roads. Pete McCennly, 26 years old, of 46 U street southwest, a passenger in a taxicab, was brought to Casualty Hospital with severe cuts and bruises from an accident near Marlboro. McCennly refused to discuss the case or say how the accident happened.

William O. Martin, 26 years old, of 330 Sixteenth street southeast, and Clifton Gibbs, 26 years old, of 419 Third street southwest, were treated at Casualty Hospital for cuts and bruises. They said their car had been forced off the road between Waldorf and T. B., Md., by a large black sedan.

Motorcyclist Injured When Struck by Auto

An automobile sideswiped a motorcycle in Capitol Heights, Md., yesterday afternoon, painfully injuring the motorcyclist.

Edgar Marshall, 20 years old, of 761 Twentieth street southeast, was returning to Washington when his motorcycle was struck by an automobile operated by E. H. Bell, of Capitol Heights. Lester J. HEAT TOLL MOUNTS; RELIEF IS NOT SEEN

Blistered Country Witnesses Deaths' Increase With Crops Hit Hard.

(Associated Press.)

Intense heat continued yesterday to hold the Nation in its devitilizing grip. For the sixth consecutive day thermometers registered record June marks and scant hope was held for immediate relief from the temperatures which brought death to upward of 150, serious damage to crops and considerable loss of live stock.

The 100-degree mark evidenced great suffering in wide-spread sections of the country and the Weather Bureau forecast remained "continued warm" for most of the parched Central Valley States, which were hardest hit by the torrid wave.

The Weather Bureau announced a maximum at Huron, S. Dak., of 108 degrees, the highest ever recorded there.

New records for June were set at Rapid City, N. Dak.; Augusta, Ga.; Birmingham, Ala., and Macon, Ga., with 104 degrees; Davenport, Iowa; Chattanooga, Tenn.; Minneapolis, Sioux City, Iowa, and Charles City, Iowa, with 102 degrees; Milwaukee, 98, and Asheville, N. C., 94.

The bureau forecast scattered showers Monday and Tuesday along the lower lakes, with continued warm weather during the next two days.

Millions Flee Cities.

Yesterday millions throughout the country sought surcease at beaches, parks, resorts, and on the motor highways. Many deaths from drownings in lakes and rivers, others from automobile accidents, added to the mounting number of the irate sun's victims.

Leading in heat deaths were Illinois, Iowa, and neighboring States in which all former June records for maximum temperatures were exceeded. In Chicago, where a lake breeze Saturday cooled the city, but not the sweltering suburbs, an average daily mean of 2.7 degrees above normal for June was attained. It was the warmest June in 60 years there. Cook County's deaths from three days of the heat numbered 60.

Throughout the corn belt many farm animals died.

Oat Crop Is Damaged.

Serious damage to oats, now in the "milk" stage, offset the corn crop's benefit from the sultry weather to some extent. At the same time, fears for corn were held in some sections of the Mississippi and Missouri Valleys unless rain came soon.

Agricultural experts said the reserve of moisture in the subsoil was slight this year in many places because of last summer's drought.

From the Rocky Mountains to the Atlantic seaboard temperatures ranged generally from 90 to 100 degrees again, with thundershowers providing only local and temporary pause to the sun's onslaught.

Even the air in an artificially cooled theater failed to provide much relief from the heat last night. Mrs. Charylene Baker, 26-years-old, of Dalton, N. Y., who is stopping in Washington at the Burlington Hotel, was overcome in a downtown theater about 8 p. m. She had attended the theater with her husband, H. L. Baker. Private W. M. Sanford, of theh Traffic Bureau removed her to her hotel.

Summer continued her stride in Washington yesterday, sending the Pennsylvania avenue kiosk thermometer to a mark a little above 96 degrees and overcoming an automobile mechanic. The official temperature showed a maximum of 88.

John J. Gardner, 21 years old, 1723 1 street northwest, was overcome by the heat while working in a gasoline service station at New Jersey and Massachusetts avenues northwest. He was treated at Casualty Hospital.

No let-up in the heat wave is seen, the United States Weather Bureau having issued a forecast of continued warm weather, with generally fair skies tempered by moderate northwest winds. Every indication is given that July 4 will be a real old-fashioned, sizzling day.

The Zoo, parks and speedway were crowded yesterday with motorists and sightseers, and the Potomac River was dotted with canoeists and bathers. Gondola trips on the Tidal Basin were especially popular last night. Amusement resorts, Glen Echo and Marshall Hall, were particularly well patronized.

Humidity, bane of existence of Washingtonians in the summer time, was not as severe yesterday as in the last week.

Gulf of Mexico Storm Moves In Over Texas

Corpus Christi, Tex., June 28 (A.P.). A storm which centered over the Gulf of Mexico for several days and caused apprehension along the extreme southern coast of Texas, moved inland south of Kingsville, Tex., early today.

The disturbance apparently had spent its greatest force over the gulf, as the wind, after it reached the coast, was described as of moderate intensity. No great damage was reported done by the wind, but rain that preceded the storm in some sections did some harm to crops and highways.

Belle Livingstone Held in Larceny

Modiste Charges New York Night Club Hostess Stole Dresses.

Rochester, N. Y., June 28 (A.P.).—Belle Livingstone, New York night club hostess, left New York today in custody of a detective to face a charge of grand larceny in connection with the alleged theft of five dresses from Helen Meyer, modiste. Miss Livingstone spent the night in the woman's quarters at the Central Police Station.

New York, June 28 (A.P.).—Helen Meyer, modiste, today obtained a warrant for the arrest of Miss Belle Livingstone, charging she stole five silk dresses valued at $162.50.

Miss Meyer's complaint said she obtained a summons for Miss Livingstone Saturday, after appealing to Mayor Walker and Police Commissioner Mulroonen, who assigned a detective to the case.

Vandal Attacks Artist's Car While Owner Paints Sunset

Mysterious Stranger Shatters Windows of Ernst W. Spink's Automobile and Victim Is Unable to Account for Weird Proceeding.

A landscape artist parked his automobile along a country road yesterday afternoon while he sought to catch the beauties of the setting sun. His conference with the art muse was rudely interrupted by the sound of shattering glass, and he turned to see a man attacking the windows in his sedan with a crank handle.

The artist, Ernst W. Spink, of 248 Park avenue, Takoma Park, Md., picked out a scene he wanted to paint on the Layhill road about 3 miles from Georgia avenue. He parked his car and walked over to a field and set to work.

He had painted for some time when he heard the first crash. He ran toward his car and saw a man industriously smashing the glass. The mysterious glass smasher calmly finished the job he had started, got into an automobile he had parked behind Mr. Spink's and drove away.

Mr. Spink had gotten close enough to see the license plate on the man's automobile, and he took it down. Montgomery County police, who were called into the case, found the license was issued to an automobile firm in Silver Spring.

Mr. Spink could offer no explanation of the attack on his car. He said he knew of no enemies and had never seen the man before.

SPORT EVENTS MARK JULY FOURTH PLANS

Swimming Meets, Baseball Games and Canoe Races Are Listed.

For celebration of Independence Day, the citizens committee appointed by District commissioners has arranged the most elaborate program of sports ever planned for the Capital City for July 4. Events will begin at 10 o'clock in the morning and continue all day in various sections of the city. Community committees, the Welfare Recreation Association of Public Buildings and Parks, Potomac River Canoe Association, Washington Tennis Association, and others are cooperating.

Two city-wide swimming meets will take place in the morning at 10 o'clock, one at McKinley High pool and the other at Francis Junior High pool, with gold, silver and bronze medals offered winners. These medals have been authorized as Independence Day Trophies by the Citizens Committee. Winfree E. Johnson, of the Citizens Committee, is chairman of athletic events, and will be assisted by officials at the various meets.

Also at 10 o'clock, the new golf course at Anacostia Park will be officially opened to the public, with Dr. George C. Havenner driving the first ball on the course. Independence Day medals will be awarded man and woman players making best scores the opening day.

At 3 p. m. the Tidal Basin will be the scene of canoe races, the first time such an event has been offered as part of the July 4 official program. Prizes will be offered to three boys who win the seven mile marathon, from the District Building to Takoma Park, which is among events of the morning.

Other events of the day will include base ball games between outstanding teams in the city and the official start of the District Open Tennis Championship games to be played at Rock Creek, Potomac and Henry Parks.

Young Man Bull Killed To Rest at Cedarville

William Geisler, 22-year-old immigrant farm hand, fatally gored Saturday by a bull while going about his evening chores on the farm of Frank Weinelt, Cedarville, Md., will be buried tomorrow morning in the little cemetery in the Maryland town. Funeral services will be held prior to interment at Cedarville Full Gospel Assembly.

Geisler died at Providence Hospital late Saturday night, where he was rushed when found by Leo Weinelt, son of his employer, crumpled and bleeding, the enraged bull snorting over the prostrate form. The young farm hand emigrated to this country from Germany a little more than a year ago and is said to have a mother and young sister surviving him in his native land.

Maryland Man Is Hurt; Capital Driver Held

Maurice Girouard, 29-years-old, of Belview, Md., was slightly injured early yesterday morning when he was struck by an automobile at Eleventh and I street southeast. A man is held on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident in connection with the case.

Mr. Girouard, taken to the Casualty Hospital, refused treatment saying he would see a Navy physician. Police later arrested Paul Whitmore, 38-years-old, of I street southeast near Tenth street, who was found at Eleventh and N streets southeast, as the man who struck Mr. Girouard.

Forced Into Ditch, 3 Injured in Auto

Washingtonian Accused of Causing Accident Is Arrested.

Alleged to have forced an automobile off the road into a ditch near Baltimore, resulting in the injury of three persons, Charles W. Rullman, 18 years old, of Morris street near Seventh northeast, was arrested by Laurel, Md., police yesterday on a charge of reckless driving. He was released on $2,645 collateral pending a hearing on Friday afternoon.

Those injured were: Charles Tormelin, of Scarsdale, N. Y., 52 years old, his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Tormelin, 50 years old, and their daughter, Dorothy, 21 years old. The man received contusions of the chest and broken ribs; the wife a sprained back and broken knee cap and lacerations of the leg. The daughter was slightly injured. They were all taken to St. Joseph's Hospital in Baltimore.

Rullman is said to have had two girls with him in his car. Police did not arrest them.

Caught on Railway Span, 3 Drowned, 1 Crushed

Albany, N. Y., June 28 (A.P.).—Trapped on a railroad trestle by a train, a man dropped his son and two other small boys 50 feet to the waters of the Normanskill Creek just before he was crushed under the train here today. The boys drowned.

WORLD CONFERENCE ON DEBT PLAN URGED

Representative Beck Seeks Permanent Benefits on Hoover Proposal.

(Associated Press.)

A world economic conference, under the leadership of the United States, to make permanent the benefits of President Hoover's proposed debt moratorium was advocated yesterday by Representative James M. Beck, of Pennsylvania.

Meanwhile, modification of the Versailles Treaty was advanced by Representative Cannon, of Missouri, as a better means of aiding Germany than the moratorium, which plan he said was "at best temporary."

The Missouri Democrat asserted the "burden borne by Germany is not the amount due the United States but the crushing terms of the Treaty of Versailles under which France and England, at the point of the bayonet, stripped Germany to the bone."

Mr. Beck praised the President's action as having "regained for America the moral leadership of the world," and said it "probably saved the German republic." He added, however, the moratorium would not, of itself, end the industrial depression.

"A year will quickly pass," the Pennsylvania Republican said, "and the world will be confronted with an economic condition that may differ in degree, but not in kind, from the present crisis. To bring economic stability to the world, it is necessary that there should be cooperation between the nations to remove the causes of the present depression."

He proposed that the economic conference, participated in by the world's leading economists, be held simultaneously with the coming Geneva arms conference, but in a different city.

The silver question and the Russian industrial menace were sugested as subjects for discussion.

"If such an economic conference were to serve notice on Russia that the other industrial nations had agreed to put an embargo upon all Russian products, if produced by national capital and conscripted labor, then Russia would have a second thought about its five-year plan," he said.

Mr. Cannon said the purpose of Mr. Hoover's proposal "is most commendable and its presentation evidences a high order of statesmanship," and "all patriotic citizens, regardless of party affiliations, should give it unbiased and unprejudiced consideration."

"However, its alturistic purpose and the nobility of motive which prompts it should not impell us to endorse it with undue haste or without serious steudy," he added.

Paris Debt Result Awaited in Britain

Optimism Over Outcome of Mellon's Parleys Is General.

London, June 28 (A.P.).—A note of optimism was felt in England today over negotiations in regard to President Hoover's war debts and reparations proposals, while much interest was being shown in the conversations of Andrew W. Mellon, American Secretary of the Treasury, with French officials.

As time passed the British people at large seem more ready to agree with the leaders of all three political parties that the Hoover proposition points the best way out of Europe's present complicated economic and financial situation.

Expressing the opinion of many, J. L. Garvin, prominent British journalist, wrote today in the Observer, speaking of the Hoover offer, published in London last Sunday: "Last Sunday was one of the great days of our time. It was like another armistice in bringing general relief and thanksgiving, but an armistice this time with hope for all and humiliation for none."

Meanwhile, interest is being felt in the forthcoming visit of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson to Berlin to further discussions started at Chequers with German statesmen a few weeks ago.

Girl, 17, and Escort, 20, Are Found Shot to Death

Dallas, June 28 (U.P.).—The bodies of a 17-year-old Dallas high school girl and her 20-year-old escort, a member of a Galveston cotton importing firm, were found half a mile apart in a lover's lane near here today. Both had been shot to death. The man had been beaten.

Wilkins Is in Norway To Get Parts for Ship

Bergen, Norway, June 28 (A.P.).—Sir Hubert Wilkins reached here today to get spare parts for the engines of his Arctic submarine, Nautilus, and will return with them to England tomorrow. He said the Nautilus probably would reach Bergen in a fortnight.

Wilkins discovered that an important part for a cylinder of the Nautilus' engines was missing from a consignment of 94 cases and has telegraphed Devonport, asking if it could be furnished there.

PARIS-BERLIN DEBT CONCORD PREDICTED

Observers Here Confident That Differences Will Be Ironed Out.

Secretary Mellon and preparing them for the President.

Mellon Continues Conference.

Paris, June 28 (A.P.)—There was no week-end holiday for Andrew W. Mellon, who resumed his conferences today with French financial leaders in an effort to bring the French viewpoint into line with those of other nations on President Hoover's plan for a war debt holiday.

He and Ambassador Walter E. Edge talked with Premier Pierre Flandin, minister of finance; Clement Moret, governor of the Bank of France, and the other financial powers whose word will be important in determining the final French position.

Conversations thus far and those which will follow tomorrow and thereafter are expected to turn principally upon the financial aspects of Mr. Hoover's proposal. Today's conversations bore on that angle of the many-sided problem and tomorrow the same issues will be discussed by the Secretary of the Treasury and Premier Laval.

Suggestion that the Young plan be suspended entirely for a year has necessitated minute examination of that plan and The Hague agreements which put it into operation. The possibility of interrupting its operation was not taken into consideration when The Hague conventions were signed.

As Mr. Mellon is believed to have taken the position that the problem now is purely a financial one, and since the French negotiators have asked careful consideration of financial details, this aspect has played the most important role so far.

Politics to Be Weighed.

Tomorrow political considerations may be examined, for it is likely that Aristide Briand, the foreign minister, and other cabinet members will be with Premier Laval when he meets Mr. Mellon and Ambassador Edge again.

At the beginning of the conversations Friday and Saturday the French spokesmen were inclined to give equal importance to the financial and political aspects, but as the discussions progressed the former appeared to have become increasingly important.

Significant of this turn is the fact that there was less interest today in whether Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius, of Germany, will come to Paris now or later.

Considerable emphasis was given to the invitation to the Germans by the fact that Ambassador von Hoesch called on Premier Laval yesterday within a very few minutes after Mr. Mellon and Ambassador Edge had left the premier's office. Later a communique by the premier gave the invitation an official character, but it is understood now that any delay in Germany's acceptance of the invitation will not necessarily delay a Franco-American understanding.

So far as the French public is concerned the last week has been one of the most exciting politically since the signing of the Versailles Treaty.

Press Turns Optimistic.

President Hoover's announcement set the ball rolling and there followed the heated debate in the Chamber of Deputies Friday and Saturday. Then came the beginning of the conferences with Mr. Mellon.

The French have raised three issues not mentioned in the President's proposal:

First, France wants aid extended to other needy nations of central Europe as well as to Germany; second, she wants to know what guarantees there are that the Young plan will continue after a year's moratorium and how Germany will pay the money she owes for 1931 and 1932; third, she wants to know whether Germany will be asked to pay interest on reparations installments deferred by the proposed moratorium.

The Paris press today is optimistic regarding the outcome of the negotiations. Le Temps predicts they will succeed and Petit Parisien expresses the opinion that since France has accepted the Hoover proposal in principle, there seems to be no insurmountable obstacle to agreement.

The invitation to Chancellor Bruening and Dr. Julius Curtius, of Germany, to tal koverm utual problems at a conference here has not reached the stage where an official summons to such a meeting has been sent to Berlin.

Premier Laval, through Ambassador Von Hoesch, confirmed to the chancellor the French acceptance of his sugestion for such a conference, but it is understood that a formal invitation will not be sent until a suitable date has been agreed upon. The present impression is that the visit of the German statesmen will not take place until the latter part of July, at the earliest.

Indiana will go to work soon on a $1,500,000 memorial to George Rogers Clark, famous frontiersman. It will be erected near Vincennes.

Capt. L. Ziegenbein, of the liner, said the vessel on this trip made a record for the Bremen to New York voyage, covering the distance in five days 23 hours, including two stops in England.

The liner was held up by a last-minute order necessitating the removal of $40,000,000 worth of gold from its holds. The decision to keep the gold in Germany was made after the favorable reception accorded the Hoover moratorium proposal in Berlin financial circles.

HILLIG AND HOIRIIS FETED BY DENMARK

King Commands Ocean Fliers to Dinner Wednesday at Summer Home.

Copenhagen, Denmark, June 28 (A.P.).—Otto Hillig and Holger Hoirlis, who last week flew across the Atlantic to Copenhagen by way of Germany, today continued to receive the acclaim of Denmark, native land of Hoirlis.

The fliers have become extremely popular among the people of Copenhagen and elaborate functions have been held in their honor. These will be climaxed Wednesday when King Christian V has commanded them to dinner at his summer residence at Marselisborg.

"I simply love being here," Hillig said enthusiastically today. "Everything fits me—except my collar, which is too big."

Last night the visitors were guests of honor at a gala banquet at the town hall, where they were greeted by clashes of lures (long curved war trumpets used by the Vikings), the highest honor accorded visitors to Copenhagen.

Members of the cabinet and other high dignitaries received them and a throng in the festive hall cheered for Hoirlis and Hillig.

The president of the municipal council and the burgomaster hailed the fliers in Danish and English, saying their flight emphasized a more important connection between the United States and Denmark.

At the famous Tivoli Garden a special fireworks display was held. This ended with the fliers' names emblazoned against the sky in letters of fire.

Later this week the aviators plan to fly to Jutland to visit the birthplace of Hoirlis.

Copenhagen, June 28 (U.P.).—Hillig and Hoirlis will sail back to the United States on July 9, leaving Le Havre, France, on the S. S. Paris.

They will fly to Berlin tomorrow in their airplane Liberty and will return here Wednesday.

1,000,000 WOMEN TO ASK DRY REPEAL

Will Petition Congress for Change in Interests of Nation's Youth.

New York, June 28 (A.P.).—The Women's Moderation Union announced today that it will petition Congress and the President, with the signatures of more than 1,000,000 American women urging repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

The petitions, authorized by M. Louise Gross, chairman, appeal on behalf of mothers "who feel deeply the responsibility for the welfare of the coming generation," and have watched with "greatest anxiety the growth of intemperate habits in this country."

They will be circulated to members of the Women's Moderation Union throughout the country, and read, in part, as follows:

"We see everywhere about us the disastrous effects of these habits. * * * Men, women and children whose characters are ruined, whose health is undermined, whose energies are sapped and whose respect for honest work is destroyed.

"We are almost afraid to think of the probable effects of this state of things on the men and women who are growing up to take over the inheritance of the present generation, which has been so deeply infected by the alcohol poison, and we believe that they can only be saved if a speedy end is made to the present system, the only fruit of which has been the fostering of a spirit of lawlessness.

"* * * We are convinced that as long as national prohibition remains in force all efforts to make the people of the United States sober and temperate will be hopeless * * *."

Similar petitions will be circulated at the 1932 national political conventions, the chairman said.

It would cost $2,250 to send postcards to all the readers that can be reached any morning by Post Classified Ads.

Post and Gatty. They had flown more than 9,000 miles and less than 6,000 miles of their journey remained.

After leaving Roosevelt Field last Tuesday, the fliers landed at Harbor Grace, Newfoundland. They took off from Harbor Grace after refueling and started across the Atlantic at 2:28 p. m. the same day. At 6:45 a. m. the next day they had landed at Sealand Airdrome, England.

Berlin was reached Wednesday afternoon and Moscow before lunch time on Thursday. The fliers left Moscow Thursday night, arriving at Novo Sibersk, Siberia, the next morning, and completing the flight to Irkutsk the same day.

Post and Gatty Average About 150 Miles Hourly

New York, June 28 (A.P.).—Wiley Post and Harold Gatty have been skimming around the globe at an average speed of about 150 miles an hour.

When they set their fleet monoplane down at Khabarovsk, Siberia, nearly five days had passed since they left Roosevelt Field last Tuesday, but only 59 hours and 28 minutes had been spent in the air. The best available information from the United States Navy hydrographic office at Washington gave the distance covered as 9,010 miles.

On this basis their average speed would be about 151 miles an hour. That figure appeared high to aviation observers, since their exact route between stops was not known and it seemed likely that on some occasions they had followed airplane courses shorter than the ones used in the calculations of the hydrographic office.

However, on the Roosevelt Field-Harbor Grace leg of their air voyage they traveled at the rate of about 160 miles an hour.

Schools for New Dry Force To Train Agents in 15 Days

Telegrams Fly in Last-Minute Orders as 12 Cities Prepare for Induction of 350 Men for Biggest Drive on Rum.

(Associated Press.)

Telegraph wires whirred yesterday with last-minute orders to the army of 350 new dry agents who will enter training Wednesday morning in preparation for the Federal dry force's biggest push, starting July 15.

Howard T. Jones, acting prohibition administrator, said final details were being conducted by telegraph in order to have the new agents enter the impromptu prohibition schools to be established in twelve cities promptly on July 1, the first day they may legally start to work.

The Prohibition Bureau's civil service division has been working night and day the last week, Jones disclosed, in order to have the men chosen from among more than 10,000 applicants properly investigated and registered.

Although some shifts were expected before a final line-up was attained, the 350 new agents will start their careers in schoolrooms approximately as follows:

Sixty-two will go to work under two trained instructors in New York City; 13 will begin school in Boston; 50 in Philadelphia, 28 in Richmond, 28 in New Orleans, 28 in Cincinnati, 54 in Chicago, 28 in St. Paul, 20 in Kansas City, 11 in Denver, 14 in San Francisco and 14 in Seattle.

Despite the fact that one-third of the new force will be spread through the New York and Chicago districts, dry officials have maintained no special drives are to be conducted in those cities.

Under the present plans the agents will be schooled extensively for two weeks, and then be distributed through the twelve prohibition districts, of which the twelve cities named are informal dry enforcement capitals.

Prohibition Director Woodcock, who is now on an inspection trip in the South, has announced that both the new and old agents will be directed to go after the higher ups among the illicit liquor racketeers. His dictum before leaving Washington was that if the augmented force does not turn in bigger and better cases an investigation will result.

One detail of starting the new men to work already has been attended to, 24 instructors, freshly trained in Washington, being now on duty in the twelve cities selected as schooling points.

HAYS, CHURCH BOARD IN NEW FILM CLASH

ply, accusing Mr. Hays of misrepresentation and "double-crossing." He said he was preparing an "inside story of the Movie-Federal Council Scandal" for publication.

The council report stated that the Hays organization had paid honoraria to former members of the Federal council's staff for addresses and other services while they were still connected actively with the council, and at a time when its motion picture policy was under consideration.

Hays Alleges Misstatements.

Commenting on the charge, Mr. Hays said:

"What is to be said about those who betray their religious constituencies by demanding and receiving compensation for lecture tours on the subject of 'Exposing the Movies?'

"What is to be said about professional pamphleteers who deliberately misstate facts and figures with regard to motion pictures?

"What is to be said about those whose zeal to reform the movies began only when they discover the industry will not comply with their demands for financial contributions?"

The Hays organization was criticized for "lack of confidence it has inspired, traceable to the fact that the public has been encouraged to expect more from Mr. Hays than he has the power to accomplish."

The report adds:

"Either the organization is impotent to do what Mr. Hays and his associates would like it to accomplish or it is a 'smoke screen' to deceive the public and cover purposes of a narrowly selfish character."

Block booking was criticized for making it impossible for theater owners to eliminate pictures they consider undesirable.

crack. Through it a rubber garden hose was pushed and fresh air was pumped into the underground prison. The hose served also as a means of communication.

Trained miners led the rescue work. They did not dare dig into the well direct, so they sank a shaft some distance away, then tunneled to the imprisoned youth.

All last night and this morning Howard remained conscious. Sometimes he joked through the rubber tube, said his legs were numb and he couldn't tell "if he had any."

The youth's family and the Boy Scout troop, of which he is leader, were among the most interested spectators. Once during the night Mrs. Smith collapsed when it seemed Howard's voice was becoming weaker. She was at the well when the boy was carried out this afternoon.

Leaders in the rescue work were Howard's brother, Floyd, and Edward Reinsch, a veteran coal miner, who survived the famous Cherry Mine disaster in which many lives were lost.

"He's the gamest kid in the world," Reinsch said of Howard.

Doctors who examined Howard said they believed he would recover within a few days.

Woman, Victim of Gas, Is Revived by Firemen

Mrs. Lillian Nicholson, 24 years old, of N street near Eleventh street northwest, attempted suicide yesterday, according to police, by inhaling illuminating gas at her home. She was revived by the Fire Rescue Squad and later was removed to Emergency Hospital.

Her condition is not serious. She had been despondent over family troubles, according to police.

REPEAL IS ADVOCATED TO WIPE OUT DEFICIT

(Associated Press)

An assertion that repeal of the eighteenth amendment would provide sufficient new Federal revenue to wipe out the deficit now facing the Treasury was made yesterday by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

The estimate was based upon probable returns from 15 States which opposed prohibition prior to the enactment of the amendment, plus two more States which since have repealed their prohibition laws.

"There can be no doubt that restoration of the legal sale of alcoholic beverages in those States which wish a change would yield enormous revenues to Federal and State treasuries," the statement said. "Our latest revised estimate, based on the 1930 census of population, puts the probable Federal revenue from alcoholic beverages at $906,402,224. This new source of revenue if it were now available would practically eliminate our present deficit."

The association quoted at length from a recent address by Secretary Mellon as to the need of revising the present tax system. It reproduced also the experience of half a dozen countries which raise from 15 to 20 per cent of their revenues from taxes upon liquor. It was said that "without exception all of these nations show a marked reduction in alcoholic consumption and a marked drop in all the indices of intemperance since the war."

The association argued that with repeal of the amendment more efficient methods and the elimination of graft and corruption would make it possible "to include the diversion of a large proportion of the drink bill to the Federal and State treasuries without increasing our annual drink bill."

The States named by the association in its estimate of an annual revenue of more than $906,000,000 were California, Connecticut, Delaware, Illinois, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, New Jersey, Nevada, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont and Wisconsin. It was estimated these States contained 49 per cent of the Nation's population.

Eugenia Bankhead Will Live in East

Former Wife of Morton Hoyt Married for Fifth Time.

San Diego, Calif., June 28 (A.P.).—Eugenia Bankhead, sister of Tallulah Bankhead, screen actress, and daughter of Representative William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, became the bride of Ennis Smith, New York business man, last night. It was her fifth marriage.

The ceremony was performed at Rosarita Beach, Mexico, fifteen miles south of Tia Juana, by Judge Rorrigo Loyo. The bride gave her age as 30 and the groom as 33. They said they would live in New York City.

Court records at Reno, Nev., and Los Angeles show Miss Bankhead was married twice to Morton Hoyt, the son of Henry M. Hoyt, former Solicitor General of the United States. The second marriage terminated in a Reno divorce in 1929, and shortly afterward Miss Bankhead was married to Wilfred Lawson Butt, a University of Nevada student. That marriage also ended in a Reno divorce, Miss Bankhead next becoming the bride of a Texas aviator named Lee. They were divorced at Los Angeles, according to information here.

Ship Construction Urged to Aid Idle

Bureau President Claims 100 New Freight Craft Are Needed.

New York, June 28 (A.P.).—Capt. C. A. McAllister, president of the American Bureau of Shipping, today declared a $125,000,000 Government appropriation for construction of 100 modern freight ships would relieve unemployment in Pacific Coast shipyards.

Such a fleet, Capt. McAllister said, would furnish a "much needed" addition to national defense at a lower cost than such ships designed only for fighting purposes.

Although Eastern shipyards are fairly well provided with work, he pointed out, the Pacific Coast yards are idle. All principal plants would be kept active for two years under the plan, he said.

NEW DIVORCE CANON CHANGE IS PROPOSED

the remarriage may be granted. The ceremony then may be solemnized by an Episcopal clergyman in an Episcopal Church and with the prayer book service.

Under all three plans, one year must elapse after the divorce before permission to remarry can be filed, and then the ecclesiastical court, appointed by the bishop of the diocese, must investigate "the characters and personalities of the parties to the previous and proposed marriages and determine whether the spiritual welfare of the parties thereto and of society will be served by the proposed marriage."

"And we engage ourselves, so far as in us lies, to make every effort to realize the Christian ideal and to avail ourselves of means of grace thereto as taught and provided by the church."

There is also a rearrangement without material change of the grounds upon which all marriages are forbidden, and on which they may be annuled in the eyes of the church if discovery of their existence is made after marriage.

In a statement accompanying the report, the Right Rev. Herman Page, Bishop of Michigan and chairman of the commission, told of the two schools of thought on divorce in the Episcopal Church. He said both felt the plan proposed of allowing remarriages outside the church or with a form different from that in the prayer book, would "really be allowed a sort of inferior or backdoor type of marriage which is unworthy of the church."

One group, he said, thought any remarriage of divorced persons contrary to the teachings of Christ, and looked on the proposal a un-Christian and immoral.

Present Restrictions.

The other group he described as feeling that something should be done to enable clergymen to remarry those divorced for causes of which they themselves were innocent, regardless of what those causes were.

At present the church allows the remarriage of a divorced person only in the case of an innocent party in a divorce action obtained on the grounds of adultery.

The bishop quoted the apparent conflict in the statements of Christ as reported in the New Testament on divorce and added:

"Many feel there is a vital problem which must somehow be faced without seeming to give the full approval of the church to the remarriage of divorced persons."

He said, however, that investigations of the commission revealed divorce is practically negligible where both husband and wife attend church.

IDEAL TIME IS NOW AT WOODLAND BEACH

Fleeting Summer Shows Wisdom of Investing in Its Attractive Lots.

This week is generally regarded as the half-way mark for the summer season and if you haven't taken advantage of the first half of the summer to prepare for the second or for other summers to come it is not too late.

Start the second half of the season right by taking a lot at Woodland Beach, The Washington Post's summer home development site on South River in Maryland. Then follow up that purchase by erecting a cottage on your property that you and your friends may enjoy all the fine things about the beach.

Scores of others are now engaged in building just such summer homes and there is no reason why you should not join their number. The cost of such a project at Woodland Beach certainly will not deter any one. Every lot at the beach has the same price tag on it—$93. And of that amount you need pay only $9 down together with the cost of a subscription to The Post. The rest may be paid each month at the rate of $3.50 per month.

Lots at this delightful garden spot of Maryland have been selling rapidly every day since Woodland Beach was first announced. Yesterday hundreds visited the beach; many to buy lots and others to show friends and relatives the locations they had previously chosen. Good roads, leading to the beach make it easily accessible to residents of the Capital.

Woodland Beach is only 32 miles from Washington via Defense highway as far as Camp Parole, turning right at that point onto Maryland State highway No. 2 across South River and then left onto Mayo road which leads directly to the nicely appointed clubhouse on the grounds. This clubhouse, incidentally, will be deeded over to an association of lot owners at the Beach when the community is ready to organize.

So many are the advantages of Woodland Beach that it is not absolutely necessary to visit the spot to become an enthusiast. If you have not been able to take the trip out there, drop in at The Post any weekday and learn all about the development. A few minutes conference with the Woodland Beach representatives will convince you that it is a proposition, worth investigating and in which you ought to invest.

Although the sale has been heavy, there are still many good locations remaining, but they may not last long. To act now is to insure a good spot on which to build that summer cottage you have always wanted.

Girl, Found Badly Hurt, Believed Beaten by Boy

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 28 (U.P.).—A girl who gave her name as Peggy Daly, believed to be Mrs. Nadrania, formerly of Philadelphia, was found unconscious in a street here today. She apparently had jumped from a window after a severe beating. One youth is held by police and another is sought.

The girl's nose and jaw were broken and it is believed her skull is fractured.

SLAVE CONDITIONS ARE VERIFIED IN LIBERIA

commission had reported. Myself a Negro, I had in common with countless others of the race in this country felt a sentimental attachment for Liberia, a sympathetic interest in its trials and tribulations and a firm belief in the classical notion that, aside from Abyssinia, it was the sole spot in Africa where the black man was free, unfettered and master of his destiny.

It was no simple matter to get the truth. Most of the Liberian officials are suspicious and evasive and little that they say can be depended upon. Though bound by ties of blood and tradition to American Negroes, they have no affection for them. Indeed, some seem to almost take pride in fleecing black American immigrants. One Liberian customs official greeted the captain of an American steamer with, "Well, how many have you got this time?" referring to Negro immigrants. Upon being told he would reply, "All right, send 'em ashore, we'll pluck 'em."

Saw Little Change of Heart.

After having interviewed government officials, foreign merchants, diplomats, natives, missionaries and chiefs, and covered over 500 miles of the hinterland afoot, visiting numerous native towns, I left Liberia on April 21, convinced that there has been little change of heart on the part of the bulk of the government class. These officials are merely being more cautious because of the widespread publicity their actions have received. The same political party that has maintained itself in power, sometimes by fraud, for more than 30 years is still running the country, while most of the officials who were in office before and during the League of Nations investigation are still on the government pay roll. The exportation of "boys" to work outside the country has been officially forbidden, an emancipation proclamation freeing "pawns" and domestic slaves has been replaced with others of their ilk and the notorious department of public works which directed most of the forced labor on roads has been closed down.

To the unknown outside world this would suggest that the Liberian government is acting in good faith, if only in an effort to get another loan, but behind the scenes, back in the hinterland and elsewhere unseen by strangers, many of the evils complained of still flourish. In this series of articles I intend to draw aside the draperies of official camouflage and expose conditions in Liberia as they are.

Boys Shipped in "Slavery."

In connection with the shipping of "boys" to the Spanish cocoa-producing island of Fernando Poo, notorious for its unhealthy climate and the prevalence of sleeping sickness, several high Liberian officials were implicated. What has happened to them? On December 2, 1930, the House of Representatives expelled two members, P. F. Simpson and W. J. McBorrough, who were immediately indicted on charges of trafficking in slavery and forced labor. Since then former President C. D. B. King, former Vice President Allen B. Yancey, Senator W. V. S. Tubman, Capt. J. C. Phillips, of the frontier force, former Director of Public Works John L. Morris and former County Superintendent D. C. Watson have all been indicted on similar charges.

At first glance this would seem to indicate that Liberia is determined to punish those whose reported acts have brought disgrace upon her, but indictment in Liberia means next to nothing. It is usually the end of the matter, unless the offending individual is persona non grata with the governing clique. Not one of the men indicted has ever been arrested or brought to trial, although ample time has elapsed. Nor does any one here think they ever will be tried. One man, former District Commissioner David Carter, is actually in jail accused of numerous revolting crimes, but even he, it is rumored, may not be brought to trial.

Doubts Halt on Traffic.

As for the shipment of "boys" to Fernando Poo, the traffic described by the international commission as scarcely indistinguishable from slavery, the government has prohibited it. But whether it has been actually stopped is something else again. A government official franker than the rest confessed that he had no way of knowing whether it had been stopped or not, what with a coast line of 400 miles, land communications only by trail, sea communications either by surf boat or infrequent steamers, with a consequent lack of information about affairs in distant ports.

The Spanish steamships do not call at Liberian ports with the frequency that they did before the slave scandal broke, but I note that they do call at Monrovia once a month. Whether they call at other Liberian ports I can not say. Certainly, it is no more difficult now to crowd a score of "boys" into a Kru surf boat and carry them out to a waiting steamer than it was before the traffic was outlawed.

Unsatisfied by the assurances of Liberian officials that the "boy" traffic had actually stopped, I rounded up several "boys" recently returned from Fernando Poo after two years' service on the Spanish plantations and questioned them about the arrival there of additional laborers from Liberia since the official outlawing of the traffic. There are dozens of such "boys" in Monrovia and each northbound Spanish steamer brings a few more. Sometimes they return in good health, but not often. At times a victim of sleeping sickness or elephantiasis has to be carried ashore like a child.

Each "boy's" testimony was similar, so I shall report of Joe Ages, the most intelligent one of the lot, at the time a laundry employe at the American Legation:

Q. When you come from Fernando Poo?
A. Right now; two week.
Q. Who send you?
A. Sammy Ross (former Postmaster General, deceased).
Q. Did you want to go?
A. No!
Q. Where you send from?
A. Monrovia (a supposedly prohibited area even then).
Q. How long stay Fernando Poo?
A. Two year.
Q. How much pay?
A. Spanish Consul (P. C. Parker, a Liberian), he pay five pounds.
Q. Many boy down Fernando Poo now?
A. Yes, yes, plenty much Liberian boy.
Q. When last boys come Fernando Poo? Since Christmas?
A. Yes, since Christmas. Some boy come last year; other boy come January.
Q. This January? Last month?
A. Yes, last month.
Q. Many boy sick—sleep, sleep all time? (Referring to sleeping sickness.)
A. Yes, too much boy plenty sick.
Q. Spanish beat much?
A. Yes, beat boy too much. Give two, three month jail all time.
Q. How much chop (food) for week?
A. Seven pound rice, one pound salt fish.
Q. Boys go Fernando Poo with you they come back?
A. Most no come back, some do. Lots sleep. Spanish mans kill boy—beat him. Other boys come town and tell. Spanish put boys in jail for one year for tell, so they no come back with me.
Q. What work boys do in jail?
A. Same work other boy do.

Jail Solves Pay Problem.

This concluding answer indicates that some Spanish authorities are jailing "boys" about the time their period of service is to expire and thus utilizing their services without any pay at all.

The other "boys" agreed with Joe, the Bassa man, but added that in addition to the weekly rice-and-fish ration, they received also a kilo of coffee and a cup of palm oil. They revealed that on Fernando Poo they were put to work at 6 a. m., worked until 11 a. m., went to work again at 1 p. m. and quit at 6. Their duties consisted of cutting jungle, picking six kerosene cans full of cocoa pods daily, washing and drying them, building government motor roads, loading steamers, carrying firewood to cook the cocoa, planting coffee—digging 50 4-foot holes a day.

They lived in warehouses, 50 "boys" being packed close together on beds of cocoa staves and banana leaves. Women were difficult to get and those available were diseased. If the "boys" contract sleeping sickness, venereal disease or any of the other numerous maladies to be caught there, the Spanish sent them to the hospital, but they received no pay during their illness, whether or not they were at fault. These conditions prevail in Fernando Poo today.

It is significant that after the post had been vacant for some time the Liberian government sent a consul to Fernando Poo, presumably to look out for the interests of its nationals there. This consul, it is reported, takes $3 of the $6 monthly salary of the "boys," which they never see again, and is also actively engaged in endeavoring to persuade those who have served their two-year term to sign up for another. If they agree the consul gets $12 from them, which is very nearly half of the £5 they receive on discharge. Hence the position of Liberian consul at Fernando Poo is not altogether undesirable.

Officials Evasive.

The international commission had the greatest difficulty obtaining information about the slave traffic from the evasive Liberian officials. Most of the testimony was given by natives, many of whom are now living in fear of reprisals. They expected the League of Nations or some other outside power to protect them, or they would never have testified. Now they feel they have been callously left to their fate.

In December, 1930, a detachment of the frontier force paid a visit to Nanna Kru and Sinoe, two coast towns above Cape Palmas. They fired upon and looted both communities and terrorized and assaulted men, women and children. The government claims the soldiers went down there to collect unpaid taxes and were attacked by the citizenry, but the victims swear their taxes were already paid. The truth of the matter is that residents of the two towns gave damaging testimony against the government in the slavery investigation and were being punished for it.

Just recently in Monrovia I met the son of a chief, a slender, sad-faced lad who was loudly bemoaning his father's fate. Questioned, he explained that his father had been deported by the government from his town to a distant section of the republic. He and several other chiefs had told the international commission what they knew about slavery and forced labor. When it was safe to strike back, the government had done so and the young man's father was one of the first victims. The others are marked men.

DEBT PLANS REVIVE BUSINESS SPIRITS

Leaders Doubt Moratorium Would Bring Quick Relief During Dull Season.

New York, June 28 (A.P.).—Business spirits were lifted from the slough of despond by the world-wide wave of enthusiasm, which has greeted the war debt holiday proposal during the last week.

If the actual volume of business activity has failed to respond notably, if the reaction thus far has been largely psychological, it may be pointed out that business and trade are in the grip of the summer lull, and the most powerful stimulants administered at this time could scarcely be expected to make themselves decisively felt until the approach of autumn.

Any sudden return to prosperity levels would, in any event, be entirely contrary to past experience with major periods of depression. But there has been a strong feeling among leaders—among whom President Hoover is one—that extremes of pessimism, a sense of utter futility, has been tending to prolong the depression, which has now been bumping bottom for six months.

Commodities Show Stability.

If indeed, as many competent observers hold, the action of commodity prices holds the key to recovery, it is difficult to say that enthusiasm is being overdone. Since the beginning of June, the general level of commodity prices had shown the most impressive stability in some three months, and the war debt plan prompted a vigorous upturn. Such commodities as copper, zinc, lead, silver, hides and cotton have risen to levels about 7 to 17 per cent above those at the start of the month.

A sustained advance in commodity prices should carry the conviction that the turn toward better times has come at last, after the disheartening false starts. A rush to restore depleted inventories might result from such a conviction. It would perhaps be too much to expect commodity prices to work steadily higher for several months, but stabilization somewhat above the low levels of the depression, in the light of past experience, should permit a steady expansion of business and trade.

The current depression has worn on for more than 20 months. In past depressions it has required the better part of a year to restore normal prosperity. If the bottom is touched with the current summer lull, therefore, the end of the depression should be reached when it is about 30 months old.

Previous Long Depressions.

It is significant that in modern industrial history we have experienced only two depressions which lasted more than 30 months. Those were in 1876-79 and 1896-98.

In the former the United States was having difficulty in returning to the gold standard. In the latter, national economy was upset by the threat to the gold standard offered by the free coinage of silver agitation.

Moody's points out that if there has been any extraordinary influence in this depression, outside of the normal workings of the economic cycle, it has been the difficulties connected with international debts. Aggressive measures to deal with this problem at this time, therefore, gives a firm basis for the hope that we may definitely be starting on the upward journey.

The past week's business statistics have shown little save seasonal influences at work. Steel output and automobile making have quieted further. Steel ingot output was placed by Iron Age at 36 per cent of capacity, or close to the levels of last December.

Freight car loadings, as reported for the second week of June, show a decline of more than 28,000 cars from the previous week. Bank clearings, as reported for leading cities by Dunn's, showed a drop from the preceding week of about 20 per cent, or substantially larger than expected. Retail trade generally held the gains of the previous week, but showed little change.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

Wee fashionables have borrowed another interesting idea from the elder mode—the shoulder capelet.

And isn't it cunning in this sleeveless model? The skirt shows soft all-around gathered fullness that permits of so much freedom for activities for play time.

And it's so pretty in white dimity with French blue dots and val lace trim.

Style No. 573 may be had in sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8 years. The 4-year size requires 1⅞ yards of 39-inch material with 4¼ yards of lace edging and 2 yards of 1¼-inch ribbon.

Dotted swiss, batiste prints, voile prints, organdie and tub silks are lovely for this cute style.

Price of pattern 15 cents. Address Fashion Department, Washington Post, Fifth avenue and Twenty-ninth street, New York City.

WEEK'S BOND PRICES GAIN IN ALL GROUPS

Wide Upturns Are Noted on Foreign Isues; Rails Also Climb Higher.

New York, June 28 (A.P.).—The general advance in bonds last week extended to all groups, although at times the emphasis shifted from one to another.

Foreign issues enjoyed the greatest degree of strength and rail issues were second in this respect. The advance was clearly part of the upward movement in financial markets following the advocacy of a moratorium on intergovernmental debts by the Federal Government.

Strength in the foreign obligations appeared first among German issues which reacted somewhat and closed below the week's peak prices. Other European bonds appreciated to a smaller extent on the German reports that the Federal Government was considering means of extending financial assistance to Latin-American countries served to boost their bonds in a sensational way on Monday, after moderate gains earlier in the week. The net gains for the week in a number of these bonds were as high as 10 points and a few scored even greater advances.

Railroads Make Gains.

Railroad bonds jumped ahead also patricularly on Friday when reports were current to the effect that the Interstate Commerce Commission would grant a general freight rate increase of 7½, or possibly, 10 per cent. With a few exceptions, the gains in the rails were much narrower than in foreign bonds.

Industrial obligations enjoyed more consistent strength than the foregoing groups.

Outlook Is Favorable.

From a broad viewpoint, the outlook for conditions favorabl to the food market appeared favorable. The Federal Reserve banks by their policy of low rediscount rates and low buying rates for acceptances have exerted a considerable influence to keep the money market easy, which is a favorable factor for bonds.

The third available means of those institutions for keeping money rates low is to increase the supply of funds in the open market by purchasing Government securities, which thus releases funds for general circulation.

Holdings of United States Government obligations of the twelve Federal Reserve banks during the week ended June 24 increased $19,499,000 to $618,503,000. This increase was interpreted to mean that the Federal Reserve authorities are determined to use the third available means for keeping interest rates low.

Increasing interest in the bond market was evident also in the $188,141,000 of new offerings, the largest weekly total since the week ended April 19. Particular attention was attracted to the flotation of $22,800,000 of bonds of the Taiman (Formosa) Electric Power Co., Ltd., because it was the first foreign issue, with the exception of some Canadian offerings, in almost a year. An issue of $85,000,000 of first mortgage 4 per cent bonds of the Commonwealth Edison Co. was the largest individual flotation.

It is significant, however, that industrial offerings amounted to only $4,000,000, and there were no railroad issues at all.

Read this . . .

before you decide that an electric refrigerator is too expensive

A WESTINGHOUSE Refrigerator is positively an ECONOMY. Let no one change your mind on that. Whether you buy the "small-family" size at $190 delivered, or one of the five larger models—you can actually save from $50 to $150 yearly with it—as compared to less modern equipment. Think of the health safety—the convenience—the ice cubes and frozen dainties. And only a small down payment is required. Balance may be spread over 12, 18 or 24 months if desired. See the WESTINGHOUSE. Get proof of these claims before you buy any refrigerator, electrical or otherwise.

Leader of the "REGULARS"

JUST as a captain leads his company, Orange American Gas steps out in front of other regular gasolines.

For it has the qualities which make it a real leader among all gasolines in its price class. Orange American Gas sets the pace for rapid-fire acceleration, for unfailing uniformity, for performance that outranks all other regular gasolines.

Drive up to any Orange American Gas Pump—from then on you'll salute this great gas as the leader of the "regulars".

SLAVE LABOR RESTRICTIONS.

Reports indicate that the Treasury Department is going to put a literal interpretation upon that section of the tariff act which forbids the importation of goods produced or handled by forced labor. This provision, which becomes effective on January 1, 1932, may virtually terminate the trade relationship between the United States and Soviet Russia.

For several months the Treasury has been studying this clause of the tariff act preparatory to setting up machinery for its enforcement. It is not surprising to learn that the Treasury considers this provision a virtual embargo against Soviet products. It was intended to be such by Congress. In fact, that is the only reason why it was written into the Smoot-Hawley act. American enterprise demanded protection against Russian dumping. Not wishing to levy an embargo directly against the Soviet, Congress voted to exclude from the American market all products of forced and indentured labor.

There can be no question that this applies to nearly all of the Soviet's output. Forced or indentured labor is defined as that labor which is not voluntary. If legal penalties are imposed on workmen for failure to perform their tasks their output is not eligible to enter the United States. Official decrees of the Soviet government show that nearly all labor in that country comes under the ban. When working men refuse to obey orders they are denied the right to lodgings, food and other necessities of life. Labor is mobilized like soldiers in time of war. Men and women are forced to go wherever they are sent and to do the kind of work that the dictators prescribe for them.

So long as this law is effective there seems to be only one loophole through which the Soviet may continue to export its products to the United States. That is the clause under which forced-labor goods may continue to be imported if they are not produced within the United States in sufficient quantity to meet the demand. Congress considered such a provision necessary to avoid exclusion of commodities which can not be obtained except from tropical regions using indentured labor. No doubt Soviet manganese will continue to be imported under this provision, but most of Russia's exports are raw materials which are also produced in large quantites here. Coal lumber, oil and agricultural products should be entirely excluded.

Regulations set up by the Treasury to exclude the products of convict labor have not been successful. It has been found impossible to determine whether convict labor has been used in the production or handling of specific cargoes, although it is well known that the Soviet does keep large forces of political prisoners at work, principally in lumber camps. When the ban on forced-labor goods becomes effective the Treasury will have something more tangible to work upon. It is encouraging to find that the Treasury contemplates a strict interpretation and enforcement of this statute.

That Soviet labor is a direct menace to American working men is not open to question. This country will not stoop to compete with slaves. Canada and a number of other nations have found it necessary to cut off economic relations with the Soviet to save their own workmen. It is imperative that the United States face this problem with unflinching determination to protect its labor.

CAUSES OF DROUGHT.

The origin of last year's severe drought has been attributed to many things by amateurs. Numerous letters received by the Weather Bureau claim that radio communication has stopped rainfall in many sections. In Canada, where the rainfall was unusually heavy, radio was blamed for attracting clouds. Automobiles and factories also were accused unjustly of dispelling moisture from the air. What actually happened is explained by W. J. Humphreys, chief of the division of meteorological physics.

Rain is caused by the sudden cooling of a large quantity of warm air. As warm air is able to support a greater amount of moisture than cool air, a rapid lowering of the temperature will cause drops to form and be precipitated in the form of rain. Warm air flowing up over cool air, or cool air forcing its way under warm strata results in showers.

From the tropics warm air is spread northward over this country, while the polar regions send cold currents southward, making a continual interchange of temperature which results in rain. The cold air travels along regular paths down this continent as well as to Europe. As it is dissipated warmth follows up the same paths to the far north.

Last summer such a large amount of cold air rushed over Europe that it caused unusually great rainfall there. The abnormal flow of polar air in that direction withdrew much of the pressure that causes currents to move down the usual American paths. The air forced its way along part of the usual route to the United States, but its volume was not sufficient to go all the distance. In Canada, therefore, it was dissipated and caused a very wet season. Last summer this country was blanketed with warm air. In many sections it was heavy with moisture, but the cold air currents failed to arrive from the north to release the much-needed rain drops.

The logic and clarity of Mr. Humphreys' theory has quite vindicated the radio and the many other maligned mechanical agencies believed by some to have contributed to the drought.

VENEZUELA'S PRISONERS.

A distinguished group of men and women some years ago organized the International Committee for Political Prisoners. The purpose of the organization is to aid victims of foreign tyranny by exposing the facts, organizing protests and sending relief to prisoners and their families. The committee recently made an investigation of Venezuelan conditions at the urgent request of exiles from that country and families of prisoners interned there. The bulletin issued by this organization reports many cruelties in Venezuela and insists that only from without can any pressure be brought to bear to alleviate conditions, as every effort within the country is immediately suppressed.

President Gomez, the 78-year-old dictator, has ruled the country since 1908. He permits no criticism or adverse comment of any kind on himself or his government. When students of the university protested against the complete suppression of personal liberty, virtually the entire student body was punished by being put to work on the roads. This also was the fate of several hundred telegraph operators who complained against a system of official graft which withheld part of their salaries each pay day.

The sentence to hard work is more than it implies. Gomez does not condemn political prisoners to death, but he puts them in chains. With insufficient food, without clothing and living in unhealthy prisons the condemned soon lose their vitality. The chains which they are forced to wear about the ankles, frequently cause infection and gangrene disposes of the prisoners in a large number of cases.

It is estimated that 15,000 persons have been killed for political activities against the dictatorship, and that Venezuelan jails hold over 5,000 political prisoners. Descriptions of the medieval physical tortures inflicted on some of the offenders are unbelievably brutal. The strict censorship imposed by the government prevents undesirable news from leaving the country so that actual conditions are little known outside of Venezuela.

THE INTERNATIONAL BANK.

The Bank of International Settlements is rapidly developing into an institution of prime importance in the financial world. Beginning business in May of last year the bank shows an increase in deposits during the first ten and one-half months from $44,000,000 to $356,000,000.

This bank was organized for the collection of reparations payable from Germany under the Young plan and their distribution to the allies. Its shareholders are the central banks or other financial institutions of the various nations, representing twenty-six countries. The bank has been able to effect savings in time and exchange charges in the settlement of reparation and war debt payments. In addition to this function it serves as a clearing intermediary for banks requiring movements of gold from one market to another. The concentration in this institution of a part of the foreign reserves of central banks has facilitated the development of transfer operations from bank to bank by book transfers and debits and credits in the accounts of the Bank of International Settlements without going through the open market.

The first business year of the bank closed with a profit of 11,186,521 Swiss francs, which is the money of accounts in which the books are kept, the Swiss franc exchange being approximately five to the dollar. A dividend of 6 per cent will be declared and the board of directors has further determined to place to the credit of a special dividend reserve fund the sum of 1,094,189 Swiss francs, leaving 2,188,378 francs for appropriation to the general reserve fund.

Complete reports regarding activities of the bank received by the Department of State indicate its growing importance and the broadening of its functions. Arrangements have been made with the central banks that facilitate conversions of currency with security of redistribution on twenty-five different markets. Interbank conferences have prepared the way for the adoption of common regulations for the purchase of gold.

OIL INTERESTS ABROAD.

American petroleum interests, while enjoying no Government cooperation, as is the case in several European countries, are actively engaged throughout the world in securing a fair share of oil resources, as well as markets for petroleum products. After years of negotiation the Gulf Oil Corporation through its South American subsidiary, has at last concluded an agreement with the Colombian government for a renewal of the contract to develop the Barco oil concession.

The great million-acre area, adjoining the western boundary of Venezuela, has long been considered a potential oil field of the first magnitude. The Gulf company shows its faith in the field by agreeing to make heavy exploration expenditures over a period of five years and to pay the government a yearly rental of $25,000 on selected areas besides a royalty of 10 per cent.

The Standard Oil of New Jersey will participate to the extent of 25 per cent in the development of the fields and building of an extensive pipeline in Iraq on the southern border of Turkey. In Russia the government has contracted with the Foster-Wheeler Corporation of New York for the construction of six refineries in Batum and Grosny. They will have a combined capacity of 50,000 barrels daily.

German imports of oil from the United States, constituting 90 per cent of her oil requirements, cost $100,000,000. Discovery of oil in the north German basin has stimulated the interest of American capital and the Hope Engineering Co. and H. L. Doherty & Co. have acquired several million acres that are being developed.

In France a subsidiary of the Standard Oil of New Jersey is building at Rouen a $10,000,000 refinery. France—now a great importer of petroleum products—is to become a great refiner of petroleum. Rouen is to be the new petroleum capital and millions will be expended for harbor improvements to facilitate shipments on the Seine and to all the ports of France. Thus it may be seen that while some foreign companies are invading United States oil fields and markets, American companies are equally active in other parts of the world.

CALVIN COOLIDGE SAYS:

Northampton, Mass., June 27.—Whatever else may be involved two lessons seem obvious from present conditions of ourselves and the rest of the world. The immediate crisis has arisen from trying to make a good many governments, of which Germany is the particular example, assume larger financial burdens than their people can bear. The result was general economic disturbance. We have escaped temporarily by huge borrowings. But we shall have to pay. In 1927 we had reduced expenses, excluding debt and postoffice, below $3,000,000,000. Since then they have steadily increased without adequate provision for a time of depression. We did not sufficiently apply the principle of governmental economy. The need of all the nations is drastic reduction of public expenses.

The other evident lesson is the necessity for peace. War ruins all participants, victors and vanquished alike. Our cost of armaments and past wars during the last year was nearly $3,000,000,000. Other nations find themselves burdened beyond endurance. Back of all these difficulties lies the World War. Its debts can not be canceled any more than the destruction of a tornado can be canceled. Some one must bear the loss. But the next war and increased armaments can be canceled forthwith. That is possible

THE GUILLOTINE MYTH

(From the Providence Journal.)

There has been a strange persistence of the legend that the guillotine was invented by Dr. Guillotin, in whose memory it was named, and that he eventually suffered death by this instrument of his own invention. The facts are so easily available that one marvels at the rugged endurance of the myth. The Right Hon. Winston Churchill seems to be the latest victim of the habit of accepting the tradition and passing it along without bothering to refer to established records.

In a recent speech in the House of Commons Mr. Churchill emphasized a point by saying: "We have all heard how Dr. Guillotin was himself executed by the instrument that he invented." Another member, Herbert Samuel, ventured to interject: "He was not!" whereupon Mr. Churchill humorously evaded the issue by retorting: "Well, he ought to have been!"

But Mr. Samuel used a whole column in the London Spectator to enlarge upon the history of the guillotine and Dr. Guillotin's modest part in its introduction into France. And he took occasion to remark that a few years ago Sir James M. Barrie made the same lapse in the course of a public address, saying: "We must remember that the inventor of the guillotine himself perished by it."

Dr. Guillotin did not come to his death on the guillotine. On the contrary, he survived all the stormy troubles of the revolution, "returned in later years to his practice as a doctor, founded the Academie de Medecine, and died peacefully on May 26, 1814, at the age of 76." All this, we are told, may be found "set out in Michaud's Biographie Universelle."

Nor was the guillotine invented by Dr. Guillotin. Under other names the same instrument, or something very similar to it in general design, had been known for centuries. It had been used in Italy since the thirteenth century, and it was in general use in Germany in the Middle Ages, while it was introduced into Scotland in the time of Mary Queen of Scots. A similar machine had been in use at various times and places in the south of France, but by the end of the eighteenth century its employment had generally ceased throughout Europe.

All that Dr. Guillotin had to do with the matter was that as a member of the constitutional assembly in 1789 he proposed a more merciful method of inflicting capital punishment, suggesting such a machine as he had read about in the description of an execution at Milan nearly a hundred years earlier. It was several years later when the use of the instrument was authorized and soon afterward, in remembrance of his original proposition, his name was bestowed upon it.

An unjust notoriety has thus been attached to the name of Dr. Guillotin. Millions of children have grown up with the conviction that he was a cruel, blood-thirsty man, who ultimately paid the price of his sins on the instrument of his own devising. The truth is that he was an excellent citizen who by no means deserved to have his memory thus barbarously perpetuated.

POST HASTE.

Senator Pittman, at Shanghai, approves the moratorium in one sentence plus a campaign speech for silver.

Secretary Stimson sailed for Italy last Saturday, according to the latest revised and definitive statement.

By the time Dr. Mellon concludes his heated sessions in Paris he will deserve 60 degrees in the shade.

Moratorium optimism has increased stock values to such an extent that a 10 per cent dividend from the beneficiaries would wipe out the Federal deficit.

"Wickersham major reports complete." But the general discussions will never be finished.

Bright boys, Post and Gatty! By reversing their course around the earth they beat the sun out of a whole day.

There is real encouragement for the future in the fact that we hear more these days about the necessity of planning definite job security from employers than from labor organizations.

Gen. Smuts gets the prize for stubbornness. He refuses Britain's moratorium offer and insists that South Africa pay her debts.

You would not have believed two weeks ago that the word moratorium could, overnight, be converted into a prohibition muffler.

The best answers of France and Belgium still remain: "Put yourself in the position of Germany's next-door neighbor."

The debate as to whether the Democratic party has been purchased by Mr. Raskob is becoming complicated with the old question of absentee ownership.

If Germany's payment of the "unconditional" into the bank and taking it out again will save the Young plan and France's face, let's shut our eyes, keep a straight face and agree.

Mexico is increasing import duties, doubtless having learned from the Democrats that it is a good way further to depress her industrial activity.

The "manana" countries are informed that "tomorrow" is not a literal translation of moratorium, at least not in Federal lingo. Latin America will have to attend the private school of finance.

The latest amusing split is a Democratic majority helping to put the debt postponement into operation and a majority trying to put in into politics.

The battleship Idaho is being modernized. Think how that would spoil the lines of a certain old-fashioned Idaho senator.

Moratorium success will be a great asset for the Republicans—if they don't try to claim it. P. H.

IRIS.

Iris, would that you could grow
Just a little stronger,
And could brave the winds that blow
Just a little longer.

Lovely are the blooms you bear,
Delicately tinted,
Like a bit of gossamer
For a fairy printed.

But for just a week in spring
Were your charms intended,
Then your radiant blossoming
Cruelly is ended.

Thus it is that mortals weep,
Joys they've learned to cherish
And the charm they long to keep Soonest seem to perish.

When We Say a Man Is Wise, We Mean Only That We Agree With Him.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

"WHAT makes the lamb love Mary so?" the eager children cried. And the teacher's reply explains many of the mysteries of human behavior. "Why," said she, "Mary loves the lamb, you know."

A public speaker who has little to say and little skill in saying it can harvest applause when he will by telling his audience how enlightened and clever it is

Do you know why men love dogs?

Not solely because dogs are lovable. The greatest of dog-lovers will be filled with misgivings and unfriendly suspicion when he enters a yard guarded by another man's dog. He may dislike all dogs with which he has no acquaintance.

He loves his own dog for its courage and intelligence and good nature, perhaps; but chiefly he loves it because it loves him. It thinks him a god. The world may scorn or ridicule or condemn him, but to his dog he remains in all adversity a great and good man, the one flawless and matchless being among mortals.

No wonder he loves the dog!

He loves it because it gives him constant assurance that he is a great guy.

He loves it because its good opinion tickles his vanity and stiffens his backbone.

It satisfies his greatest hunger—the hunger for approval.

And the ability to satisfy that hunger is the thing that gives to favored mortals, old and young, handsome and homely, the coveted quality called "charm."

Psychologists, genaecologists, philosophers and laymen have wasted many words in an effort to define and explain charm, but it is nothing vague or mysterious. It is nothing more or less than a liking for people.

What makes the lamb love Mary? Because Mary loves the lamb. What makes man love the dog? Because the dog loves the man. What makes people love the charmer? Because the charmer loves people.

You meet a stranger whose voice is friendly—whose eyes are alight with good nature—whose courtesy makes you feel at ease—and you leave him in a pleasant glow of self-satisfaction.

"How charming he is!" you say. But that compliment, being interpreted, means: "He liked me and treated me so well that he multiplied my self-respect."

You can't fake charm. It comes from the heart. But you can develop it, if your heart is right. For it is nothing more than a frank assurance that the other fellow is worth liking.

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Nebraska's Superman.
Wadena (Minn.) Pioneer Journal.

It is becoming more apparent every day that the senior senator from Nebraska (Norris) is a political hypochondriac. He imagines that our whole social and economic structure is thoroughly impregnated with every possible kind of disease and deludes himself into the belief that he, and he alone, has a panacea for all our national ills. In fact, he has convinced himself that he is the only honest man left in public life. The task of reconstructing our whole governmental system, which he has so valiantly undertaken, is weighing heavily upon George. His irritability increases with age. He can not quite understand the public's lack of appreciation of his many superior talents and virtues. Although he deserted the Republicans in the last two national campaigns, he cannot understand why the Republican party is not in the least interested in his views and preferences, but then, that is the way with hypochondriacs.

Extending Hoover's Plan.
Louisville Courier-Journal.

The announcement by Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, that England would follow the spirit as well as the letter of the Hoover plan for a debt holiday and extend the one-year moratorium to the dominions and India is a far-reaching development of the original proposal. It holds out the promise of relief to the nation next to Germany most seriously affected by the economic depression. It offers hope of stability to Australia, which is in political and financial turmoil not unlike that in the defeated country.

The British offer, if the Hoover plan is accepted, will relieve Australia of a drain of $15,200,000. This is the difference between what Australia would have to pay on its war debt to England, about $19,600,000, and some $4,400,000 which the dominion would receive in reparations from Germany. It is not a great amount, considering Australia's pressing obligations, but it is appreciable and it should help in the organization of the country's finances.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Evils of the Saloon Are Pointed Out by Writer Who Has No Fond Memory of the "Good Old Days."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Several days ago I read in your column a request for some facts about conditions existing under the legalized saloon. May I be permitted to submit the following:

The younger generation of today questions the wisdom and value of prohibition. At this we do not wonder. They never saw a saloon nor came in close contact with the diabolical product produced by it. They know nothing of the great numbers of men who hung about the saloon, waiting for some one to come along and give them a treat. They never saw the distress, poverty and hunger caused by wages wasted in drink, nor the wasted manhood and womanhood that was debauched by the drink evil.

The following cases are a few of many which came under my observation in the saloon days, and are but samples of what could be found in every community where the saloon existed. I knew two young men, both fine workmen, having good trades, both of whom were victims of the open saloon, dying before they were 45 of acute alcoholism. I saw one of then enter a grocery and saloon combined, ask the clerk for two loaves of stale bread, for which he paid 7 cents, and for 3 cents' worth of meat scraps. Then he went to the bar in the rear of the store and paid 10 cents for a drink of liquor. The meat scraps and stale bread he took home to feed a wife and two small children, who lived in a hovel, sleeping upon beds of rags on the floor.

I saw a mother take a pair of baby shoes given her by a kindly neighbor to a saloon and sell them for a pint of liquor, and she was often seen to take food contributed by charity and sell it in the same way. She and her husband were both habitual drunkards. Her family of two children were so poorly fed and clad, beaten and abused by both parents, when drunk, that the civil authorities had to commit them to a home for proper care.

It is the purpose of prohibition to prevent the evil results of drink, and at its worst, prohibition is infinitely better than the saloon at its best. It is the sincere hope of all good citizens that the saloon will never return and that prohibition may become more and more effective in destroying the debauchery of our men and women. WM. PIERPOINT.

Virginian Asks Churches Not to Cooperate With Prohibition Campaigners.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Dr. Poling's statement to the effect that the political campaign soon to be launched by the dry group is to be "strictly nonpartisan," will be taken with a big grain of salt by the thinking people of this country. Similar statements were made time and again in 1928, and even a great many of the political parsons had the temerity, early in the campaign at least, to go so far as to claim that the religion of one of the candidates had nothing to do with their sudden enthusiasm and entry into politics.

The fact that Dr. Poling's army of crusaders is composed largely of the ministers of the Protestant churches who so bitterly assailed one of the candidates in 1928, including such persons as Bishop Cannon and State Senator Love of Texas, is of itself a guarantee in advance of the character of the campaign to be carried on and proof positive that it can not possibly be nonpartisan.

Should any person be so much as inclined to question the accuracy of the foregoing assertions, any doubt will at once be removed if he or she will only try to imagine these dry crusaders heartily and openly supporting the same candidate that Gov. Al Smith supports, irrespective of the dryness of that candidate.

Because of the bitter strife aroused in the 1928 campaign and its repetition, which is sure to ensue, I appeal to the Protestant churches to see to it that these political crusaders are forbidden the use of the churches in which to spread their propaganda.

A VIRGINIAN.

Dr. Howard Is Lauded for His Long Public Service in the Field of Entomology.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Dr. L. O. Howard, for 33 years chief of the Federal Bureau of Entomology, wins the second annual Capper award of $5,000. Dr. S. M. Babcock was the first winner of this award, which he received for giving the dairymen his discovery of the butter fat test. Dr. Howard's services have been devoted to public benefits. His chief source of benefit to the farmers is his war on insect pests. He has done considerable research work along these lines and aided the growers of fruit, grain, vegetables and live stock in the fight for eradication of insects. His discovery of insect parasites that attack other insects has saved citrus fruit growers several millions of dollars. Dr. Howard hopes to control the damage done by insects, which amounts to billions of dollars, through the use of scientific methods. He deserves the Capper award for his great service to mankind. J. Committee Wants to Interest Citizens in Elimination of Dangerous Grade Crossing.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As the mayor of our city (Alexandria, Va.), said a few days ago, the Southern Railway Co. will retain its steam railroad grade crossing at Wilkes and Washington streets over the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway. We wish to get the readers of your paper and other citizens to help us to eliminate this dangerous grade crossing. It is a peril to motorists and holds up traffic several times a day while large, smoky trains pass.

COMMITTEE OF CITIZENS.

Citizens Are to Be Given Four Weeks' Course in Military Tactics.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fort Monroe, Va., June 28.—The 1931 citizens' military training camp will open at Fort Monroe, Va., Thursday, when 485 candidates from Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia and the District of Columbia will report for the four weeks' training period.

This camp is but one of a number of similar camps being held throughout the entire country, but differs from most of the others in that at Fort Monroe that part of the training devoted to military work pertains to the Coast Artillery Corps, the branch of the United States Army which is charged with the defense of our shores against naval attack and also with all ground defense against attack by aircraft.

Initiates Given Base Course.

Candidates attending camp for the first time are assigned to the basic course, which has for its object the teaching of the privileges, duties and responsibilities of American citizenship and the stimulation of interest in the importance of military training. Having satisfactorily completed the basic course, the candidate is eligible to attend the red course at his next annual camp, in which he is given elementary military instruction in one of the branches of the Army. At Fort Monroe the training is with the Coast Artillery Corps.

The next step in the candidate's advancement is attendnace at the white course, to be eligible for which he not only must have passed the red course, but must also have a grammar school education or its equivalent. The white course has for its object the qualification of candidates as noncommissioned officers in the branch in which they are training. The fourth year the candidate attends the camp he takes the blue course, which, in conjunction with specified between-camps study, prepares the candidate for appointment as a second lieutenant in the Officers' Reserve Corps. A high school education is one of the requirements for admission to the blue course.

Recreational Features Offered.

Another important phase of camp life is the recreational activities. A well equipped hostess house is provided, at which the men may read the news of their home localities in the newspapers generously donated by numerous regional publishers, or entertain themselves with books and magazines provided by the Government, or meet their friends or relatives who are visiting camp. Several dances have been scheduled, and an excellent movie provides nightly entertainment at a nominal admission price. Interesting and instructive trips have been arranged to points of historic interest, such as Yorktown, and to the great shipbuilding yards of Newport News, and the Navy Yard at Norfolk. Those men with an inclination for deep sea fishing will have an opportunity to try their luck during fishing trips to be taken on one of the Army mine planters.

Officers and men of the Regular Army have been busy for days preparing the camp for the arrival of the candidates, and one of the most successful citizens' military training camps yet held is anticipated.

Col. Carr Takes Oath as General on Wednesday

At 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, in room 3036, Munitions Building, Col. Irving J. Carr, recently appointed chief signal officer of the Army, with the rank of major general, to succeed Maj. Gen. George S. Gibbs, will take the oath of office for that position.

The oath will be administered by Maj. Gen. Blanton Winship, the judge advocate general of the Army.

13 Married Women Barred as Teachers

Somerville, Tenn., June 28 (U.P.).—Thirteen married women were disbarred from teaching in Fayette County when the school board recently ruled that no married women teachers would be employed during the 1931-32 term.

The board also reduced the salary of high school teachers 10 per cent.

MacMillan Vessel At Christmas Cove

Completes First Leg of Trip to Far North; Will Go to Nain.

Christmas Cove, Me., June 28 (U.P.).—The Arctic schooner Bowdoin, mother ship for the fourteenth expedition of Commander Donald B. MacMillan, celebrated explorer, is here tonight after completing the first short leg of her voyage from Wiscasset, Me., to the far north.

The Bowdoin is to proceed to Nain North Labrador, under command of Capt. John Crowell, mate on last year's expedition, to be joined there by Commander MacMillan, who plans to take off from Rockland Airport July 5 or 6 for the northern port.

After his proposed nonstop flight to Nain with his pilot, Charles G. Rocheville, Commander MacMillan plans to use the Bowdoin as a supply ship for an aerial expedition into Labrador, Greenland and Iceland with the intention of surveying some 3,000 square miles of Labrador and studying early traces of the Vikings.

PAN-AMERICAN BAND CONCERT IS TONIGHT

Cueto and Rejas to Assist at Fifty-sixth Program on Union Esplanade.

United States Navy Band and opera and concert singers will give the fifty-sixth program of Latin-American music at 8 o'clock tonight on esplanade of the Pan-American Union. The band will be under direction of Charles Benter.

A number of selections on the program will be played for the first time. Assisting artists will be Margarita Cueto, Mexican soprano, and Mario D. Rejas, Argentine tenor. Miss Cueto sang leading roles in the National Opera House of Mexico City. She is considered one of the best interpreters of the folk songs of Latin-American lands.

Mr. Rejas will sing songs of the pampa. He received vocal and musical education in his native country and Italy. He has toured Italy, Spain and France in concert work, making his debut at the Lyric Theater in Milan.

Entire program will be broadcast over radio station NAA from 9 until 11 o'clock. The last hour of the concert, from 10 until 11 o'clock, will also be carried on the network of the National Broadcasting Co. The International General Electric Co.'s station at Schenectady will send out the program on short wave length to the capitals of Latin America for rebroadcasting.

Selections by the band will include "Estandarte Chilian;" "Almas Destrozadas;" "Chapina," a cornet solo; "Hymn to the Sun;" "Tip Nac;" "Indigena" and a vibraphone solo, "Serenata." Several suites will also be played.

Party Opens Envoy's Home In The Hague

Housewarming Is Had in Form of Reception by Mr. Swenson.

WHILE the vogue in buildings finds expression in attractive new houses for American envoys abroad, dedication last week of the residence taken by the American Minister at The Hague, Mr. Laurits Selmer Swenson, at 4 Sophialaan, was the medium for a delightful gathering of guests from all parts of the world, for the house-warming on Tuesday took the form of a reception for the delegates to the international congress on military hygiene, the guests having tea in the beautiful garden of the legation.

Among the guests were Commander A. A. Corwin, naval attache at the legation; Mr. Jesse van Wickel, commercial attache; Mr. Carol Foster and Mr. Egmont C. von Tresckow, American consuls at The Hague, and Mr. Sidney H. Browne, vice consul at Rotterdam.

Two members of the delegation from the United States were given welcome. They were Col. Edgar Hume and Commander William Seaman Bainbridge, who had been commissioned to take to The Hague the Golden Cross of the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States to Maj. Gen. J. C. Diehl, head of the medical service of the Dutch army.

The cross, which carries with it the honorary membership of the association, was pinned on the general's breast by the minister after speeches by the two delegates explaining its significance.

Only four months ago Mr. Svenson was appointed envoy to the Netherlands as successor to Mr. John Gerrit Diekema, whose death occurred at The Hague in the winter. Transferred from Oslo, where he had served as minister for ten years, the genial Norseman from Minneapolis was royally welcomed at the Dutch capital. With nearly 30 years' experience in the foreign service, Minister Swenson's acquaintance is world-wide.

Appointed in 1907 as Minister to Denmark and in 1911 Minister to Norway, in which country he has served twice as American envoy, the greater part of his residence abroad has been in the Scandinavian countries, although an interim of two years, 1909-1911, was spent in Switzerland as Minister of the United States.

He was succeeded at Oslo by Mr. Hoffman Philips, of Washington.

Miss Frances Johnson, of Roanoke, Va., who attended the graduation of her sister, Miss Rosalie Johnson, from Central High School, is a guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Kaschagen, where Miss Rosalie Johnson also is visiting.

The Secretary of War, Mr. Hurley, will return to his home on Belmont road today from New York, where he attended the inauguration of a program of pier building.

Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, will leave Washington the middle of the week for New York to say bon voyage to her son, Charles Francis Adams, jr., when he sails for Europe. Since the close of Harvard University, where he has been studying, Mr. Adams has been on a Naval Reserve cruise, but he will reach New York on Thursday, sailing Friday to pass the summer abroad.

From New York Mrs. Adams will go to The Glades, her summer home at Minot, Mass., where she will spend the greater part of the summer, the Secretary joining her for week-ends.

The Danish Minister and Mme. Wadsted dined on the Shoreham terrace Saturday evening.

Mrs. Montgomery Blair, with her son, Charles Woodbury Blair, is at Wardman Park Hotel for an indefinite stay.

Miss Slattery Is Bride Of Mr. C. T. Webb.

The marriage of Miss Loretta Gertrude Slattery, daughter of Mrs. John T. Slattery, to Mr. Charles Thomas Webb, son of Mrs. Thomas M. Webb, of Chaney, Md., took place Saturday at 7:30 o'clock p. m. at the Sacred Heart Rectory, with Mgr. P. C. Gavan officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. John J. Slattery, wore a gown of cream color lace made along princess lines, with a bolero and cap sleeves, and a veil of cream colored tulle. She carried roses, gardenias and lilies of the valley. Her attendants were her sisters, Mrs. J. Fendall Cain, as matron of honor, and Miss Nora M. Slattery as maid of honor.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony at the home of the bride, 3173 Eighteenth street. Mr. Webb and his bride left for a wedding trip, the latter wearing an ensemble of blue georgette, with a cream colored blouse and accessories. They will be at home after July 10 at the Sedgewick Apartments.

Miss Mae Vance was hostess at a garden party on Friday evening at her home in Chevy Chase, honoring Mrs. Myrtle Slater Schock, of Cleveland. The grounds were decorated with Japanese lanterns. During the evening there was a musical program. Miss Pauline Brunner, contralto, rendered several selections, accompanied by Mrs. Kathryn Lawrence. Miss Josephine Daly added to the program with Spanish selections. Mrs. Schock plans to visit Atlantic City and New York before returning to her home in Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Pollio and their young daughter, Olive Pollio, have left Washington by motor for Toronto, Canada, to visit Mrs. Pollio's mother, Mrs. W. B. Blackhall. Mr. Pollio will return to the Mayflower in a fortnight and his wife and daughter will spend the summer in Canada.

Miss Caroline G. Colby, with a party of friends, sailed Saturday on the Laconia for an extended trip abroad.

Miss Brooks, Miss Gwynn and Miss MacArthur are all close friends and will be debutantes next winter. The little party will start by motor for Philadelphia this morning and will be members of a house party staying the night at Whitemarsh Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowman MacArthur will also go from Washington to Philadelphia for the party, as will Miss Laura Tuckerman and Miss Elsie Tuckerman, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman.

Mr. Clifford Brooke, director of the National Players, and Miss Louise Irwin, formerly of South Africa, now of New York, will be among the guests of honor and will contribute a comedy skit to the potpourri entertainment to be put on by the Arts Club tomorrow evening. Other honor guests and contributors to the variety entertainment will be Mrs. Milnor Dorey, pianist, of New York; Miss Helen Carter, violinist; Dr. L. Christie, tenor; Miss Marjorie Webster, who will give readings and pantomimes, and a group of McKinley dancers, including Miss Judy Lyeth, Miss Martha Fisher, Miss Betty Sleeper and Miss Ruth Shoemaker.

This quartet will repeat part of the dance given on the Sylvan Theater stage during the recent representation of "The Piper." Mrs. Maud Howell Smith will be the evening's hostess.

Among the delegates to the annual conference of the national Florence Crittendon Mission, held at Wilmington last week, were Mrs. Thomas E. Robertson, president of the board; Miss Jean S. Cole, superintendent of the home; Mrs. John Boyle, jr., Mrs. Fred G. Mitchell, Mrs. Frederick M. Kerby, Mrs. Walter A. Brown and Mrs. Earl English. The local board held a reception at the home on Conduit road on Thursday for the group returned from the Wilmington sessions.

Mrs. Newton, wife of Capt. John Henry Newton, U. S. Navy, has come to Washington for a visit. She is accompanied by her son, and they are staying at Wardman Park Hotel.

Dr. and Mrs. Everett M. Ellison will leave Washington tomorrow morning, for an absence of five weeks on a journey to the Pacific Coast. They will visit friends and relatives throughout the country and will spend some time in the Grand Canyon and Yellowstone National Park. They will attend the annual convention of the Loyal Knights of the Round Table at Spokane, Wash., of which Civic Service Club Dr. Ellison is international president.

Modern Laundry Expert Explains "Net Bag System"

Tells How Manhattan Saves You Money By Saving Your Clothes

Present day laundry methods, which preserve clothes as well as clean them, are far superior to the old home method of rubbing and scrubbing, according to Mr. E. F. Wesely, chief of the Research Department of Manhattan Laundry. Mr. Wesely attributes a large part of the Manhattan Laundry's success to their Net Bag System.

Manhattan's famous Net Bag System of washing, as described by Mr. Wesely, follows: First, the clothes are assorted according to their color and material and placed in individual net bags which bear the customer's name and contain only that customer's articles. Safe in the nets and protected from all metal or other hard surfaces, the clothes go into the washers. Here they are subjected to the gentle cleansing action of swirling hot suds which penetrate each garment and loosen every particle of dirt. Only the purest of Palm Oil soaps and soft, filtered water are used, after first having been inspected and tested by the Research Department. Many rinsings of fresh, clear water follow, removing every trace of dirt. This thorough care in washing is one reason why Manhattan laundered clothes stay new-looking so much longer.

Customer Praises Net Bags

In a recent letter to the Manhattan Laundry, Mrs. E. R. D. writes:

". . . But the one actual fact that pleases me most is that the clothes do not show as much wear as they did when I had my laundry done at home . . . It is indeed a pleasure to recommend you . . ."

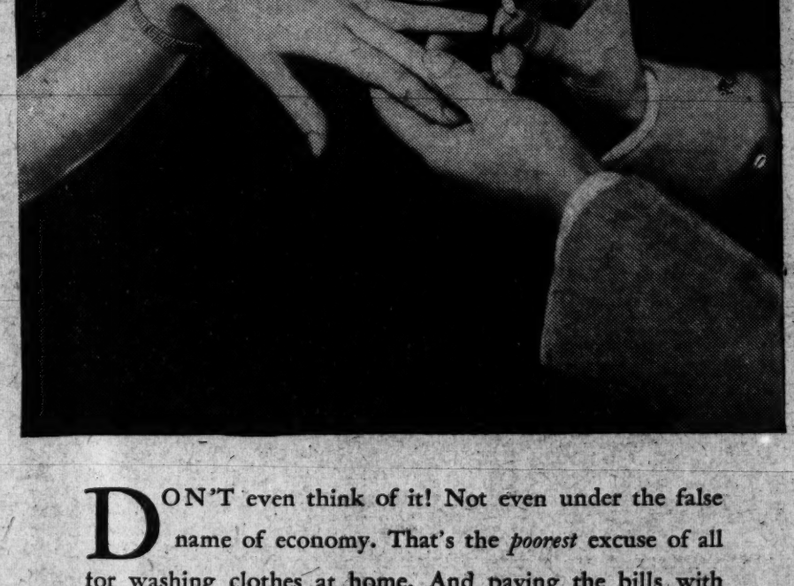
This letter is typical of the many received by Manhattan from satisfied customers throughout the District of Columbia and Virginia.

3-Day Collection and Delivery

Quite another Manhattan feature which has found great favor with Washington housewives is their 3-Day Collection and Delivery Service. In this highly developed system your clothes are collected one day, laundered to your order the next and delivered to you promptly the afternoon of the third day. For instance, if your clothes are collected Monday morning they are delivered Wednesday afternoon; called for Tuesday, back home Thursday, and so on. No delay. No worry. And there is no additional charge for this extra service.

Services to Fit Every Need

Manhattan offers the housewife a wide selection of economical services — from Complete Finished Family to individual piece work. There is a service to fit every need and purse, and every service receives Net Bag Care—which saves you money by saving your clothes.



DON'T even think of it! Not even under the false name of economy. That's the poorest excuse of all for washing clothes at home. And paying the bills with backache and heartache. With weary muscles and red hands!

Have an understanding about this laundry problem now. No washtubs for you. And no embarrassing clothes lines either. Your home is not going to be a laundry. The clothes are going to Manhattan—where Net Bags Save You Money by Saving Your Clothes. Where modern equipment makes possible 3-Day Service. Where pure Palm Oil Soap and soft, filtered water protect even the daintiest pieces.

A call to Decatur 1120 will bring a representative to explain our many money-saving services. Phone today . . . and protect your charm and happiness from weary washday.

THE Federal Radio Commission, after the most active twelve months in its history, has recessed until September. Arrangements have been made for the handling of routine and emergency matters by transfer of authority. It is expected that at least one member will be in his office all through this period, and, as was the case last year, action will be taken where necessary subject to ratification by the full commission later in the year. Hearings will be held before the commission examiners, as usual.

More than 250 hearings were held last year, action having been taken on about 210 cases, with the remainder still pending. An aggregate of some 5,000 applications were passed on, mostly from amateurs seeking renewal of licenses, ship, broadcasting and commercial licenses.

Almost every phase of radio regulation was involved in the commission's decisions. The most important matter handled during the year was the Radio Corporation of America—Section 13 case—settled last week. The high power matter was gone into thoroughly and the allocations will be forthcoming after October 1.

A way was paved for a new allocation of short waves. It narrowed the frequency deviation of broadcast transmitters, making for sharper tuning by the listener. Three stations were removed from the air for alleged use of profane or indecent language or other practices opposed to the public health.

These are but a few instances of the constructive work done by the regulatory body—but these are enough to show that the life of a commissioner is anything but a bed of roses.

Chairman Charles McK. Saltzman will spend his vacation at Lake George. Vice Chairman Eugene O. Sykes will go to his home in Jackson, Miss., probably in August, and for an inspection tour of the Southern zone. Commissioner Ira E. Robinson will vacation at his home near Grafton, W. Va. Commissioner W. D. L. Starbuck may make an airplane trip to the Western States.

Singing four selections, Geraldine Farrar, one of the last of a famous coterie of operatic singers to answer the call of the microphone, will make her radio debut in the first of a special series of Packard Programs tonight. (WJZ network, 9:30 p. m.)

The first and second selections are to be "Habanera" and "Seguidilla," from "Carmen." She will follow these with Dvorak's "Songs My Mother Taught Me" and Tshaikowsky's "None But the Lonely Heart."

ANOTHER motor program, having its premiere tomorrow night (WRC, 8 p. m.) is the Nash Parade of Progress.

Reenactment of some of America's most historical scenes, played by a cast of radio and stage stars, assisted by a band of 35 pieces, is the type of program which Nash has selected.

The "Sisters of the Skillet" will add a period to their weekly broadcasts which will be broadcast by WRC. These appearances will begin Wednesday morning, 9 a. m.

The chief life guard at Coney Island, "Chief" McMonicle, will inaugurate a series of life saving experiences in Columbia's new offering. (WMAL, 8:45 p. m.)

American delegates to the World's Dairy Congress to be held in Copenhagen, Denmark, July 13 to 17, will speak from New York in the National Farm and Home Hour tomorrow before boarding the steamship.

Gustave Haenschen will conduct an all-string orchestra during the Coca Cola Hour, beginning Wednesday night. He gained nationwide popularity as director of the Palmolive Hour.

James J. Corbett, former heavyweight boxing champion, will discuss the forthcoming Stribling-Schmeling bout during the program.

A LICENSE for the installation of an aircraft radio station—"NR-211"—has been granted Col. Charles A. Lindbergh for use on his proposed flight to Japan.

The United States Navy Band, with Margarita Cueto, Mexican soprano, and Mario Rejas, Argentine tenor, will compose the musical offering from the Pan American Union tonight. (WRC, 10 p. m.; NAA, 9 to 11 p. m.)

A two-months leave of absence from duties in the NBC New York Studios has been granted George Hicks, former WRC announcer. He will visit the folks back home in Tacoma, Wash., for the first time since he started radio work at WRC about three years ago.

Since Andy Sannella's Orchestra started selecting a new tune each week as a hit song, several hundred pieces of music written by aspiring young amateurs arrive at the studios weekly.

DEAN of saxophonists, Rudy Wiedoeft, expects to organize a special instrumental group for broadcasting in the fall.

Rudy has written more than 150 compositions for the saxophone. He was probably the first man to introduce the instrument into a dance orchestra and was the initial saxophone soloist to broadcast, his work having been heard from the old RCA experimental station in New Jersey a number of years ago.

Jane Interprets the Mode

New York, June 28.

THERE'S no doubt at all that as soon as one type of thing is established as chic and thus becomes popular—fashion's leaders and leading fashion creators simply have to look about for something to take its place. For a few seasons the skirts of almost all your day-time frocks, even those of wool, have been circular in form—either with circular all-around fullness or with circular godets. And though it's a lovely, graceful line, I knew it couldn't continue, since the essence of chic is change.

And of course, I was right (as usual, n'est-ce pas?) . . . and flared skirts, whether for suits or dresses, are being replaced to a large extent by the very leading couturiers with pleats.

I don't think there was one flared day-time skirt in the whole Patou midseason collection, or if there was it didn't stand out amidst all the pleated models? Patou's favorite method of distributing his pleats are in four groups—two at the sides in front and two likewise in back. Box pleats and flat pleats are both used and their distinctive feature is that they are stitched down to about the knees or just a little higher—or they are stitched down to varying levels in the same skirt. Worth goes in for this almost as much.

All-around pleats, either of the accordion variety or of the wider type, are also used a great deal, but much less than the group idea in pleating. Of course, in these new pleated skirts, no matter what type of pleat is used, the pleating never starts from the waistline as it used to long ago. Either the pleats are applied or attached to the skirt below the smooth hip-line, or they are stitched down to give the effect of the hip section being closely molded.

Of course, you mustn't think from this that flared skirts aren't still extremely smart . . . the point is that they are no longer exclusively so! And while the flared skirt is feminine and graceful—the pleated variety has the attraction of being trim and neat.

Cool in color and in fabric, and in the simple appearance of its not-so-simple—and what more could you ask than is embodied in this lovely frock from Ardanse that I have sketched for you today? The color is that unusual and becoming shade of bluish-green, and the material georgette. The vogue for pleats is represented in the frills that edge the skirt and the unusual open sleeves—and isn't it a clever and slenderizing trick to use vertical seaming from breast to hem? 'N' then, as a final touch of coolness and crispness, there's the tiny rolled collar of white organdie that ends in a casual bow!

• • • •

Of course, we all need frocks that are a little dressy to wear when we sally forth to the streets—for who knows what intriguing and unexpected engagement is waiting around the corner! The best thing is to remember that fussiness is never good taste on the street, and to be on the lookout for something as smartly lovely and restrained as the frock shown today.

Two smart morning hats—a little draped Sisol straw hat to wear on the street, and a white felt with a blue-dotted band for sports, matched with a dotted scarf—'n'—I sketched them both so you could see how different morning hats could be!

• • • •

There's one thing every one of us needs—and we don't just need it, we must have it! That thing is an evening gown, and there isn't a woman living who can get along without one, unless she lives on some fair South Sea isle—which exception won't affect many of my dear readers, now will it? And because there are lots of us who don't need an evening gown very often, there is one color that is the best choice for them—black! I have designed a black evening dress for you, and it's one that is wearable now as it will be months from now. Do hurry and send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department, The Washington Post, for this leaflet—for this is the kind of an evening gown you'll wear, and not leave hanging limply in the closet like the fifteen-or-so-odd that belong to your own Dah-ray's collection!

• • • •

Au revoir!

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

CULTIVATE YOUR GARDEN CONSTANTLY.

MIDSUMMER is the time in the "affairs of the garden" when we must be ever diligent. There are two enemies we must constantly combat, drought and insects.

Watering the entire garden isn't always practical. It takes time and in midday hours the sun prohibits such work.

Of course, some watering must be done each day, except when there are showers. There are in all gardens some very much exposed locations that dry out more quickly and that simply must be given water if we would have our flowers live. But there are other spots, especially where we have our herbaceous plants, that will get along for quite lengthy periods, provided we have an occasional shower.

So, while we can to some extent forsake the use of the garden hose, we must be vigilant in another direction—we must cultivate.

This means getting out our hoes and working in the early morning or after sunset. The only reason I designate early morning and evening for this work is that during the cooler hours of the day the work is less laborious.

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

Before the sun is quite up, garden work is delightful. The dew is on the flowers and everything seems fresh. Later in the day, when the sun is in the zenith, we grow tired and we do not do the work so thoroughly. Frequently we risk becoming really ill from the intense heat. Getting up with the birds is never a burden. Try it, if you don't believe me.

Most people think hoeing is injurious to one's health. This is a mistake, for muscles are used that are rarely exercised.

Always work systematically, it is the only way to accomplish anything. Cultivate your dahlias today and your lilies tomorrow. Constant cultivation does two things, it conserves moisture and keeps down weeds.

Cultivation conserves moisture by breaking the ground up into small pieces, which, being irregular in shape, overlap the pieces beneath them. Those below overlie the stratum of soil where the rootlets are embedded. This lower soil is the soil we aim to keep moist, therefore the shadier this portion is, the more moisture will be retained.

Wedding Gayety Costly.

Hatfield, England, June 28 (A.P.).—One can be married here for the usual modest sum, but if you must be gay it costs more. Ten shillings (about $2.50) is to be added for confetti at weddings.

Culbertson on Contract

By Ely Culbertson
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

"BETWEEN THE LAW OF SYMMETRY AND A YAWN."

AT the end of the first session of the Master's Pair Championship for Baron Waldemar von Zedtwitz's Gold Cup, my wife and I found ourselves in the backwoods, trailing behind a dozen or more other teams. We were not surprised. A pair of youngsters from college whose combined age is 36 got away with a phony double and induced the "Originator of Scientific Camouflage" to play a hand at three diamonds when every other table scored a Slam; a few more cold bottom scores were added by my favorite short suit leads against no-trump.

Judge for yourself how hopeless was our situation when a number of our Bridge friends complimented us on our play of the Dummy and sympathized with our bad breaks.

During the second session breaks favored us. Toward the end of the last session we were, alone in the field, running neck and neck with the donor of the cup and P. H. Sims, players of mighty skill. A discard, an echo or an "odd" trick might decide the championship. We had two teams more to play, one of them a dangerous one, Theodore Lightner and Mrs. Sims.

Then board No. 5 was played.

The Bidding:

Mrs. Sims	E. C.	T. Lightner	Mrs. Culbertson
Pass	1♠ (1)	Pass	3♥
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—The proper bid is a pass. I chose that propitious moment to make a "surprise attack" on Lightner, hoping to bluff him. If successful it might give us a decided lead over Mrs. Sims and Baron von Zedtwitz. I was horrified to hear my partner (who naturally was misled by my bid) tighten the noose of a Slam bid around my neck with inexorable Forcing bids.

2—To pass the Forcing three-heart bid on the grounds that I held no Opening bid might easily have cost us a game and result in another "cold bottom." Besides I never pass a Forcing bid—not even in sleep.

The Play.

The whole play hinges on the question of the spade finesse. Mathematically with ten trumps the odds are so slightly in favor of a finesse as to be of itself a negligible factor. A more important factor lies in the singleton diamond King. I do not know by what mysterious channels of shuffle, but the fact remains that a singleton honor is frequently (too frequently) accompanied by a singleton honor in some other hand. I therefore decided not to finesse when—lo and behold!—I caught sight of a slight, partly suppressed yawn on Teddy's mouth. Why should a man who is obviously wide awake desire to yawn—unless a sudden excess of nervous energy seeks a physical outlet? On weighing the factor "Law and Symmetry" on one scale and the factor "slight twitching of the mouth muscle" on the other scale I decided to finesse.* That board gave us top and is one of the reasons why we came up so close behind—alas, still behind—the winners.

*The half-comouflage bid and the play raise a question of ethics which might be quite confusing to many players. My camouflage bid was fair because in misleading my opponents I was at the same time running the grave risk of misleading my partner. As for profiting by mannerisms it is perfectly fair to observe the enemy but it is equivalent to cheating to observe deliberately and profit by mannerism, tone of voice or gestures of one's partner.

Mr. Culbertson will be glad to answer questions on bidding and play of hands sent in by readers. Address him in care of The Washington Post, INCLOSING A TWO-CENT STAMPED SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Temple" is of English origin. It is derived from the Latin "templum," meaning "a temple," and generally indicates an original place of residence near a religious house, especially a preceptory of the Knights Templars. However, there is evidence that this name was frequently given to foundlings. One London church register records the baptism of 104 foundlings between 1728 and 1755, all of whom were named "Temple" or "Templar." The Hundred Rolls mentions a certain Matilda du Temple. A fourteenth century register includes the names of Petrus del Tempil and Matilda de Tempell. In Germany the name "Tempel" is rather common, but this German name is in no way associated in origin or meaning with its supposed English equivalent. The German name "Tempel," which is found especially in Prussia, is the modern form of "Theganbald." "Theganbald" was an old personal name, meaning "bold blade" or "bold sword." It was first given as a nickname to young heroes.

The family name "Ginn" is generally derived from the Irish "Mag Fhinn." "Mag Fhinn" is a variation of "MacFhinn," which means "the son of Fionn." The personal name "Fionn" means "fair." In a few cases "Ginn" has been traced back to the English name "Ginner." "Ginner" is really an old form of the modern word "engineer." It was originally applied to men who had charge of the early devices for hurling rocks and other missiles in warfare. It is believed that sometimes "Ginn" may be a shortened form of such personal names as "Guinevere," "Eugenia" and Jane," but there is no conclusive evidence of such derivations.

What Today Means to You

"CANCER."

IF June 29 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:45 a. m. to 10:45 a. m., from 3:30 p. m. to 5:30 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to midnight. The danger hours are from noon to 3:30 p. m. and from 7:15 p. m. to 9:15 p. m.

The astrological tendencies of June 29 are somewhat unfavorable for personal matters and social interests, but they favor the carrying out of all matters relating to the business and financial world. Possible misunderstandings within the family circle.

Children born on this June 29 will show, from extreme infancy, a smart and lively personality. Their inventiveness and originality will increase as they mature, and, with careful encouragement, they should become very successful in artistic endeavors. Theirs will be a loving and generous nature.

Born on a June 29 you are extremely ambitious, and should, with careful foresight, attain great heights. You should pursue a public or political career, as your determination, combined with your extreme originality and active imagination, will enable you to take the lead and control other people. You always aim to be fair and unselfish, but you are inclined to be a trifle too critical of others. You should cultivate patience and understanding, and should be more careful as to the feelings of other people.

You enjoy social life, and are always on the go—loving variety and change of surroundings. You suffer from the germs of boredom, and your enthusiasms are very short-lived. This applies to your attitude toward people, as well as things or places. You are 100 per cent loyal, however, when it comes to your own kith and kin. If you do not make as much out of life as should be expected from one of your ability, it will be due to your inability to "stay put."

You have a strong attraction for the opposite sex, which, unless you are careful, is apt to cause differences in your family circle. When your emotions are aroused, you are apt to throw good sense to the winds, and to pamper your desires. You have a jolly-good-fellow generosity, but it can not be said that you ever give until it hurts.

Successful people born June 29:
1—St. George Tucker—jurist and poet "The American Blackstone."
2—John Q. A. Ward—sculptor.
3—John Bach McMaster—historian.
4—George E. Hale—astronomer.
5—William James Mayo—surgeon.

Foods for the Fourth

1859 saw the establishment of a small independent store—the A & P

1931 sees that small nation one of the greatest and most favored ever known and—

1931 sees that same small store multiplied by the thousands until it has become the greatest retail business in the world.

America has so prospered because it offers opportunity for all. It is a country unhampered by out-worn traditions.

A & P has expanded because it is unhindered by out-of-date commercial methods. It is a business that is alive and growing and constantly adapting itself to new conditions of life in America.

A & P grows with America. It is an American development and an institution that, in accordance with the spirit of the Declaration of Independence, offers equal service to all the people and equal opportunity to secure the best foods at reasonable prices.

By making good food available to all, A & P makes the "pursuit of happiness" not a rainbow to be vainly followed but a reality within the reach of all.

LABOR FAIR CLOSES; WINNERS ARE LISTED

Orphans Are Guests; Funds Will Be Used Toward War Memorial.

The Central Labor Union Exposition and Fair, held for two weeks at Fifth street and Florida avenue, closed Saturday night with one of its largest crowds in attendance.

Saturday afternoon the fair entertained more than 400 orphans from various homes in the city. Everything was free to the youngsters.

The war memorial committee, headed by Frank Lee, is pleased with the result of the carnival, and while not enough profit was realized to complete the quota, the committee feels the effort was worth while.

At the close of last night's performance prizes were awarded as follows, and those winners who were not on the grounds can get them from Fred S. Walker, at Typographical Temple, by presenting their credentials:

Glass tea set, to J. C. Schooley, 1242 Franklin street northeast; lot at Woodland Beach, from The Washington Post, to Frank J. Coleman, 620 A street northeast; picture, to Joe Marshall. Eastern Shore Railroad Bows to Auto Competition

Increased use of private automobiles and buses has made it no longer profitable to operate its passenger service between Eurlock, Dorchester County and Salisbury, Wicomico County, on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, the Baltimore and Eastern Railroad Co. asserts in a petition filed with the Maryland Public Service Commission seeking to discontinue such service. In addition, the petition states that an order of the War Department requiring the company to construct a new span in its bridge across the Nanticoke River at a cost of $135,000 can not be complied with as funds are not available.

In its communication to the commission the Eastern Shore carrier says that it had been operating for some time at a loss and points out that no loss of freight service to any community or shipper would be entailed by granting of its request.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

NEXT to the closing of the National Theater Players, who ended the fortnight's run of "Strange Interlude" and their twelve-week season last night, I presume the week's most closely watched theatrical event will be the opening of the new Ziegfeld "Follies" in the Ziegfeld Theater, Sixth avenue and Fifty-fourth street, New York, on Wednesday night, July 1.

The hinterland heralings concerning this most recent representative of a distinguished line, dating back to 1907, are to the effect that while Dr. Ziegfeld has sacrificed nothing of his habitual enthusiasm for feminine pulchritude and pictorial beauty, he has receded a trifle from his previous staunch stand that in his revues purity must be paramount.

The new "Follies," they say, in spots is just a little grimy, some of the skits, as one wag has expressed it, having progressed through Parlor, Bedroom and Bath! This is what Mr. Percy Hammond, the most articulate of the drama's oracles, refers to as the washroom school of humor.

I trust that the simultaneous dedication of the Midcity Boxing Arena, out Laurel way, Wednesday evening may not seriously impair the good Dr. Ziegfeld's gate receipts!

Maurice Chevalier was another who bid his friends in America an appreciative au revoir last night—over the air in the Chase & Sanborn hour. The genial Frenchman, as of course you know, sails for the Riviera this week—probably for the purpose of counting up his United States income in time for the next tax returns! Whatever it is, I should say that he has earned it, except that a portion of it was paid him for singing over the air!

And that reminds me. Kate Smith, whom we used to have to be careful to call after school hours to ascertain whether she could sing over the wireless for us that night, is at the Capitol Theater, in New York, again this week, heavily billed along with Lawrence Tibbett, Charlie Chase, the Diamond Boys and Jascha Bunchuk. Heigh-ho!

Lawrence Tibbett, by the way, is occupying the screen at the New York Capitol in "The Prodigal"—the same Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production that was presented here at the Palace weeks ago under its original title of "The Southerner." You will recall that the titular figure is a tramp. Very clever work, this. Having played the picture 'way up North in Washington under the (to some) offensive title of "The Southerner," M-G-M now presents it 'way down South in Gotham under the less objectionable title of "The Prodigal," to avoid an affront to Manhattan's sensitive Dixie nature!

And it is to be hoped that this week's bookings in Washington will not occasion discord in the home of Mr. and Mrs Douglas Fairbanks, jr.

Mr. Fairbanks, jr., is making his debut as an individual star at the Earle in "Chances," and Mrs. Doug. jr. (Joan Crawford), is starred at the Palace in "Laughing Sinners."

If one or the other runs away out in front in receipts, what a tough breakfast table topic THAT is going to make!

There have been numerous instances, cited here from time to time, when the same player has appeared simultaneously on two local screens, but Richard Tucker this week seems rather to have all the others done in, as we say at the polo matches.

Mr. Tucker is currently appearing as the associate publisher in Monta Bell's "Up for Murder," at R.-K.-O.-Keith's; is cast in a minor role in Earl Derr Biggers' "The Black Camel," at the Fox, and as the legal conciliator in Elmer Harris' "Stepping Out," with Charlotte Greenwood, at the Metropolitan. The unemployment situation seems to be out of a job as far as Mr. Tucker is concerned.

It seems to me that of all the plans that have been suggested for restoring "the road" to something of its former importance and prestige, George M. Cohen's is the best—and the least likely to be adopted.

Mr. Cohen, one of the greatest personalities and shrewdest showmen the American theater has produced, is of the opinion that what really needs to be done is for a score or so of the foremost producers of the legitimate theater to take a loss for a year or two by sending their best attractions on tour—just as was done in the old days—and thus strengthening "the road" by affording it sustenance a little more substantial than any mere gusty typhoon of words about it.

It has been demonstrated during the season just closed that "the road" is still there if any one has the courage to go out and look for it and offer it something worth having. Mr. Cohan knows this to be true from his own experience. So does Ethel Barrymore. So do Mr. and Mrs. Coburn. So do a good many more.

"The road" will take a bit of going after. It can't come to Broadway. The going after will require a bit of financial risk—and so probably won't be done as vigorously as it might in times of less economic stringency.

But if it is, one of the first things that should be done out in the so-called "sticks" is to put up the quality of legitimate houses and bring down the prices they charge. It is in these regards that the cinema has outstripped the traditional theater.

And what makes it such a slow trip getting from E street to F on Thirteenth is having to wade through all those Pennsylvanians!

Soroptimists Form Club in Baltimore

Washington Members Present Charter to New Organization.

The formation of a Baltimore Soroptimist Club was the culmination of the efforts of Mrs. Ruby Lee Minar, Mrs. Mary Catherine Lewis, Mrs. Ethel Knight Pollard, Mrs. Nell Hysong and Mrs. Betsy A. Fisher, Washington Soroptimist members who presented the Baltimore club charter at a luncheon at the Lord Baltimore Hotel, Saturday.

Officers of the Baltimore club were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Gertrude Gallagher; vice president, Mrs. Mary Muller-Fink; recording secretary, Miss Virginia Westcott; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Cecile Colbert; treasurer, Miss Ann Miller; members at large, Mary Story Vaughn, Henrietta Hickman and Elizabeth R. Nice.

The installation banquet of the Baltimore club will be held at a date set by Gov. Ritchie of Maryland, who will be the speaker.

GOOD . . . they've got to be good!

The right way for a cigarette to hold its "audience" is to keep on giving smokers the kind of "performance" they want. This one does!

NATS DIVIDE PAIR AT CHICAGO AS MACKS WIN TWO

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THIS is a late date to be discovering new ramifications in human nature, so I would not be unduly surprised if this column has been scooped in its contention that one of the most expedient methods of creating a stampede in any given direction is to forbid formally anything of the sort.

Ever since Mr. Adam partook of the forbidden pome in Genesis, his descendants who came to be the human element of nature, have shown an equally avid interest in any sign that bore the magic words, "No trespassing." There are several cases in point and they involve a more mature mental quirk than childish curiosity.

As a law-abiding and righteous citizen, although disfranchised at the polls, this column will make no reference to that great piece of moral legislation, the Volstead act, but I offer as something pertinent the present golf rebellion incited by Big Boy, the bigger and lighter golf ball which the U. S. G. A. has imposed on that great bulk of players who constitute Mr. Average Golfer.

In Open Rebellion

Any fancied shortcomings of Big Boy on the green, or the fairways, or in the wind, have been magnified manifoldly in the eyes of Mr. Average Golfer by the mere fact that he is compelled to make Big Boy a part of his golfing equipment under pain of being barred from supervised tournaments. The old 1.62 ball is being bootlegged in thousands of bags and two New York clubs in open rebellion have tossed Big Boy bodily into the Bronx.

Thus human nature, featuring its pet attribute, indignation, again asserts itself. Somebody in the U. S. G. A. erred gravely. Psychology and foresight that ought to have been borne of generations of experience with the people of the world, was lacking sadly in the august chambers of the golf moguls. There was an easy way out.

To popularize Big Boy should have been an easy matter. The word should have gone out from the U. S. G. A. that the bigger and lighter ball had arrived, but that it was not for common consumption. They should have restricted Big Boy to the pros and the two-handicap amateurs. And Mr. Average Golfer would have raided the storehouses to buy the forbidden pellet.

A Case in Point

There is another case in point. It's the prize fight industry in Washington. Oh-ho, as General Manager Angy Gerrin, of the Mid-City Boxing Club, would say, there is a prize fight industry in Washington despite No. 589 in the District penal code forbidding any contest with fists or gloves to which admission is charged, or for any prize, medal or other emolument for the fighters.

The direct result of the lawful estopper on prize fights in the District of Columbia has been the creation here of one of the hottest fight towns in the East. So starved for fights are the good folk of Washington that 3,000 persons will make the trip to Fort Washington every week over rickety roads and on a puffing and wheezing old river packet to see a couple of visiting fifth-rate heavyweights feature a card composed of poor local talent.

And in Baltimore, where the prize fight industry has been legalized and placed under the supervision of the Maryland Boxing Commission, so that the population of 800,000 might not feel that their sacred human rights were suffering indignity, there is not a promoter who has received sufficient popular encouragement to stage a bout since last summer.

About Wrestling

The wrestling renaissance that has swept the Washington public of a sporting turn into the arms of the promoters and the muscle men as it has throughout the nation, has developed the fact that there are in Washington 4,000 regular patrons of wrestling who can be depended upon to put in an appearance at the Auditorium at the weekly shows. Of course, when the bouts are staged at Griffith Stadium in the cool of a summer evening there are a couple of thousand more of the faithful.

Wrestling is thriving in communities where boxing, though legalized, is dead. But Washington, with its antiprize fighting law, is a fertile field for the fight promoters. If 3,000 regulars will hazard the trip to Fort Washington, fights that could be staged in the city proper would outdraw wrestlers. But fight fans here are forced to hie themselves beyond the city limits at Fort Washington and Laurel for their forbidden pleasure. And because it's forbidden, they go. Human nature, as they say about murder, will out.

Golias, French Pro, Wins German Open

10,000 Watch Whites Win Polo Title

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON.

A RECORD-BREAKING crowd of 10,000 polo fans watched the War White four down the Third Cavalry Yellows from Fort Myer yesterday on the Potomac Park Oval, 7 to 5. The victory gave the Whites the title in the annual War Department Polo Association's tournament, the final being attended by the largest crowd ever to witness a polo game in the District.

Third Cavalry had a two-goal handicap, but even this was not enough to overcome the clever defense of the White polo ists and the masterful stickwork of Maj. Devers, White No. 4 man, who accounted for six of the winning squad's seven goals.

Lieut. Noble, Cavalry No. 2, furnished the spectators with the big thrill of the afternoon when he put the Yellows in the lead after the Whites, by scoring two goals in the first, wiped out the handicap with a 65-yard drive through the white uprights.

Patton's Early Score Gives Yellows Lead.

Shortly after the start of the game Maj. Patton dribbled about 40 yards and scored. Hardly a minute after this Maj. Devers took a neat pass from Maj. Eager to equalize the score.

Early in the second period Lieut. Noble made his sensational shot, but Cavalry's lead was short-lived, as Maj. Devers scored his second goal after a hard scrimmage in front of the Cavalry goal to tie the match once more.

Cavalry fought hard in the third to stave off the White attack. Lieut. Holbrook and Maj. Cunningham teamed well in defending the Yellows' goal, but about midway the chukker Maj. Devers tallied with a tricky backhand shot to put the Whites in the lead, never to be headed.

Maj. Devers counted once more in the fourth and again in the fifth, aided by clever passing by his teammates.

Whites Hard Pressed In Sixth Chukker.

Cavalry fought desperately in the final period, the sixth, to overcome the White lead, and for a time the winners were plainly in distress. Maj. Surles and Lieut. Noble were peppering the Whites with shots from every angle, but finally Maj. Eager hooked the sphere from a scramble and drove it far down the field, where it was retrieved by Maj. Devers and tapped through the goal for the latter's sixth goal of the afternoon.

With but one minute to play, the Whites fouled and Lieut. Hollbrook, taking the resulting free drive, sent the pellet through the White uprights for the final marker of the day.

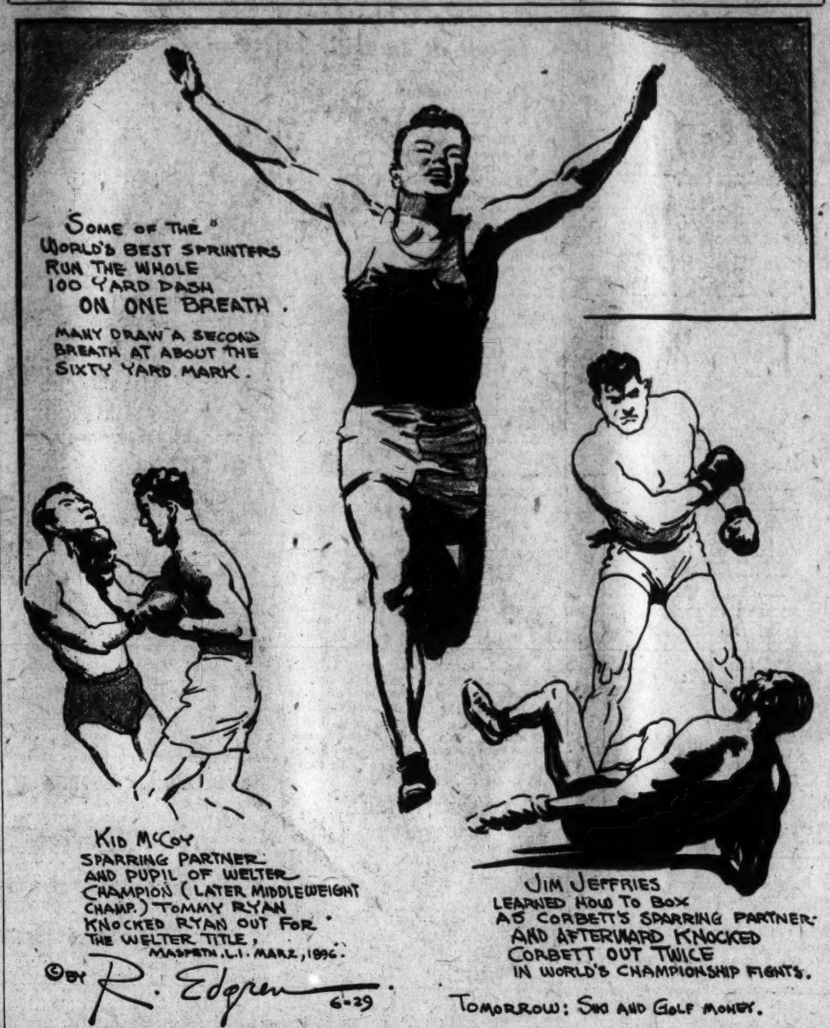
MIRACLES OF SPORTS. —By Robert Edgren



BOUT IS SEEN FINANCIAL 'FLOP'

July 3 Date Believed Illogical for $5.49 Customers.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

CLEVELAND, June 28 (A.P.).—It seems now as though some one was slightly in error from a box office standpoint when July 3, the traditional night before the Fourth, was selected for the fifteen-round heavyweight title combat of Max Schmeling and Bill Stribling in the Municipal Stadium.

The turnstiles haven't been clicking before the box office windows the way Madison Square Garden of Ohio thought they would and there's more than just a suspicion that Mrs Midwest Housewife is largely responsible. The explanation of that goes like this:

The Fourth of July, for the man of moderate circumstances, is the only outstanding holiday between Christmas and Labor Day, the day he bundles the family in the car and rolls away for a long week-end. His wife and youngsters have been planning the holiday for months and the hotter it gets the more eager they are.

$5.49 Customers Seen Few.

Father may want to go to the fight the night before the Fourth, but he soon discovers when he discusses the matter with the family that he can't do both. The morning of the Fourth, with congested traffic and complicated arrangements, is a bit late to be starting away for the holiday. So the Garden officials are becoming reconciled to the fact that many potential $5.49 customers, the rank and file of the faithful who carry the financial freight for all major fights, will be parked resettully on screened-in porches by cool lake and river sides, listening to the radio broadcast next Friday night.

Davis Cup Donor Still Plays Fast Net Game

Manila, June 28 (A.P.).—Gov. Gen. Dwight F. Davis, one time national champion and donor of the Davis Cup, has not let his official duties prevent his keeping in tennis form.

Despite advancing years, he still plays a stiff game. His forehand drive has terrific power and he still is fast enough on his feet to be a formidable opponent for even the best of local players.

ROBINS BEAT CARDS 4TH STRAIGHT

Pound Grimes Out in 10-4 Win as Luque Stops Champions.

BROOKLYN, June 28 (A.P.).—Brooklyn scored a one-sided victory over the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals today, reducing their margin over the New York Giants still further by winning, 10 to 4.

Adolfo Luque went the route for the Robins, who scored their fourth straight win over the Cards, allowing ten hits and keeping them well scattered until the ninth inning, when he eased up. Jim Collins, pinch hitting for Gelbert in the ninth, got a home run with none on.

Brooklyn drove Burleigh Grimes from the hill in the first six innings, piling up seven hits, including Lopez's triple, for six runs. St. Louis used four pitchers.

Mr. Arno Rightly Refuses To Play Dead at Figurative Bullets of Mr. Vanderbilt

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.
Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, June 28.—It really seems that loving friends should intervene in the terrible strife between young Mr. Neely Vanderbilt and Mr. Peter Arno, the comic artist, at whom Mr. Vanderbilt recently fired several hypothetical shots from a hypothetical revolver. Mr. Vanderbilt announces that he is going into training under Jack Dempsey so that as soon as Mr. Arno recovers from his hypothetical wounds he can bust him one on the nose.

From Mr. Vanderbilt's own account of the incident it looks as if the boys were playing Indian the last time. As I remember the rules of the game of Indian from childhood's happy hours, the white man, which would be Mr. Vanderbilt in the present case, points his finger or a broomstick at the Indian, which would be Mr. Arno, and yells loudly, "Bang. You are dead." Sportsmanship at that age is still latent and quite often the Indian, not wishing to be dead, replies, "You missed me." It all depends on the Indian's sense of sportsmanship. Thereupon, the white man says, "All right, then, I will not play any more," and the two are sore at each other for as long as two days.

Grown-up men like Mr. Vanderbilt, however, who has been manifesting his grown-upness publicly for several years now, are likely to magnify these little disputes into terrible grudges. And here several days have passed, and, far from playing Indian with Mr. Arno again, Mr. Vanderbilt is going to take lessons so that he can bust him on the nose in three counts, like a golfer, fresh from the hands of his pro, remembering his don'ts on the first tee.

It would be rash to say that it would be a waste of time and effort for Mr. Vanderbilt to take these boxing lessons, because up to the present he has been devoting himself to literature, and nobody knows but that he might soon fight better than he writes. There must be something he can do at least fairly well, and it would be unfair to deter him in his efforts to find out what.

I made some critical observations on the barehand fighting of laymen in the free-for-all on the railroad

American Trio at Wimbledon Face Tests Today in Singles

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 28 (A.P.).—The second week of play in the British tennis championships, starting tomorrow, finds America still with three survivors in men's singles and one in the women's division. Competition in both singles divisions has reached the quarter-final round.

America's hopes look brightest in men's singles, where John Van Ryn, Frank Shields and Sidney B. Wood remain to battle for the championship against the three Britons, H. W. (Bunny) Austin, Fred Perry and G. P. Hughes, the Japanese, Jiroh Satoh, and the favored Jean Borotra, of France.

Experts summing up the chances of the last eight consider the homebreds have a difficult task against the Walberg Hurls Club to 5-1 Victory in Second Battle.

DETROIT, Mich., June 28 (A.P.).—Philadelphia won both games of a doubleheader with Detroit today and went back to a two-and-one-half-game lead over Washington at the top of the American League standings. The champions won the opener 9 to 1 and the night cap 5 to 1.

Both games were pitching duels, Mahaffey overcoming Bridges in the first and Walberg winning his twelfth victory of the season in the second. He was opposed by Uhle and honors were about even until the start of the ninth, although the Athletics were leading then 2 to 1. Uhle walked Simmons, wild pitched him to third and hit Miller in the back. Williams then hit a home run. It was the only circuit drive of the two games.

Red Sox Bow Twice, 5-4, As Browns Boost Streak

St. Louis, June 28 (A.P.).—The St. Louis Browns, the new phenomenon in the American League, boosted their winning streak to eight games today by a double, 5 to 4 victory over the Boston Red Sox. The Browns have won four games from the Red Sox by one-run margins.

Webb hit two homers in the second game, the first going into the pavilion with none on in the fourth, and the second going over the pavilion in the ninth. Wallace Hebert, youthful portsider for the Browns, was in trouble several times.

GOLF STARS MOVE ON TO TOLEDO FOR NATIONAL OPEN

Title Tourney Has British Menace

12 Britons in Field at Inverness; Play Starts Thursday.

Many Now on Scene; Long Course Offers Severe Test.

By PAUL MICHELSON.

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 29 (A.P.).—"On to Inverness" was the cry of the world's master linksmen today as they loaded their favorite war clubs and set out for the blue ribbon show of American golf, the 1931 National Open championship.

From scattered sections of the globe they came—146 picked craftsmen of the old Scotch pastime—all fired with the burning ambition to blast their way into the throne room from which the king of golf kings, Bobby Jones, so calmly walked out.

Field Is Swankiest And Toughest.

It was not the largest field in the big show's 37 years but it looked like the swankiest and the toughest. England made its greatest invasion with a dozen of its finest players; two came from France, one came from Germany, another from the Philippines and the rest of the field was comprised of America's greatest stars.

Many of them already were on deck trying conclusions with Old Man Par over the rolling, deep rough protected fairways of the championship Inverness Club today, but the most of them were not expected until tomorrow morning, for a two-day drill for the 72-hole journey that starts Thursday morning and ends Saturday night.

Inverness was ready to test them in every department of the game. The course, a stretch of 6,529 yards, was in its ugliest mood. Its fairways were narrower than they were eleven years ago, when they threw up such stiff resistance that a medal score of 295, eleven shots over par, was good enough to give the crown to Ted Ray, the last Englishman to win the prize. The score of contenders already on the scene were so impressed with the course's stubbornness that they shook their heads and predicted four rounds of 73s, two over par on each trip, would be plenty good enough to win, although a much classier field was in the fight this time, as compared with 1920.

Almost all the scores in the early drills were around 75 and upward, although Percy Aliss, of France, and Clarence Gamber, long driving professional from Detroit, did equal par on one trip with 71s.

From past performances and the type of game called for on the Inverness layout nine, Americans and one Briton stood out in the early second guessing as prime favorites to win the crown today. Topping them all came Tommy Armour, the fighting Scot from Detroit.

Armour, rested after his triumph in the British open at Carnoustie, played Inverness several times last week while most of his British and American rivals struggled through the scorching sun at Scioto in the Ryder Cup matches. He experimented with the course most of the time and found it to his liking with its frequent calls for well placed iron shots of which there is no greater master than Tommy.

Sarazen and Hagen Chief U. S. Rivals.

His principal American rivals, any one of whom wouldn't stun the golfing world by a victory, included Gene Sarazen, gunning for his second open title; Walter Hagen, the former king of golf who demonstrated his return to form so convincingly in the Western open and Ryder Cup matches; MacDonald Smith, who just missed the title last year after four fine rounds; Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn star who promises to come through any time now; Al Espinosa, who led the Nation's field in the open's qualifying rounds with his great 135 at Chicago; "Light Horse" Harry Cooper, Chicago's diminutive ace, who is all steamed up; Densmore Shute, another star of the Ryder Cup fight, and Ed Dudley, new Western open champion.

A. G. SPALDING was the only pitcher on the Boston Club, in the old National Association from 1871 to 1874. In 1875, Spalding pitched 64 games, winning 57, losing 4, and tying 3 for the remarkable average of .934. From April 19 to June 3 he won 24 consecutive games.

—Arlington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

ARLINGTON PARK, Chicago, June 28.—With the closing of the Washington Park course, the scene shifts to Arlington Park, where the $70,000 Classic Stakes, for 3-year-olds, will be decided during the 30-day meeting. Several other important fixtures are included in the stake program. The association will distribute close to $700,000 in stakes and purses during the session.

The Arlington Handicap, with $25,000 added, is next in importance. The Post and Padock, with the same amount; the Arlington Cup, a $20,000 added prize; the $15,000 Arlington Oaks and the $20,000 added Stars and Stripes are the high lights on one of the most promising sessions this season.

Followers of the steeplechase branch of the sport will welcome the decision to card an infield event each Monday, Wednesday and Friday during the meeting. For jumpers $30,000 has been provided in stakes and prizes.

The initial program tomorrow afternoon is featured by the Inaugural Handicap, which attracted 25 of the leading thoroughbreds in training to contest the $5,000 added purse over the 7-furlong route. Many prominent Easterners have entered their best and with several from the Western contingent, the event takes on the aspect of an intersectional strife.

In this large field, the Valley Lake Stable's fleet Prince Pal colt, HIGH FOOT, lightly weighted, with 109 pounds, has an excellent chance to gain the honors in the Inaugural, fifth on the program. The Prince Pal 4-year-old stepped 6 furlongs in 1:11 flat as his final trial. GALLANT KNIGHT has shown his brilliant speed in recent races, but with 123 pounds aboard and at the short 7 furlongs, the Audley Farm star is selected for the place, with H. B. Swope's SEB favored for the show.

FIRST RACE—In the dash over the 5½ furlongs of the opening event, for maiden 2-year-old colts and geldings, MEXICO appears ready to graduate. The S. W. Labro youngster raced forwardly in his last start and will improve off that effort. TEXAS KNIGHT has raced with better company than he meets here and should furnish the opposition. MINTON, from the Valley Lake Stable, is on the improve and may beat MAD WIND for the short end of the purse.

SECOND RACE—The steeplechasers will have their inning in the 2 miles of the Onwentsia, which brings together a field of seven fencers, to contest the $2,000 purse. CONTRITION, in the Mrs. F. A. Clarke string, scored impressively in his last start at Belmont Park and appears capable of duplicating that effort AUTUMN BELLS arrived in good condition from his Canadian invasion and should battle it out with the top one. HILLOCK has trained well for his steeplechase campaign and figures best of the others.

THIRD RACE—Seventeen top-notch 3-year-old-and-up sprinters will face the starter in the 6 furlongs of the third. The Audley Farm's speedy gelding, THE CHOCTAW, which has been rested up since his brilliant performances at Agua, his the class of this group, and rates the call. ZACAWEISTA showed a return to his best form last start when he led home a clever field of platers over this distance. The son of High Time is at his peak and will be difficult to beat. The show is reserved for PANCHIO, from the Mrs. E. Denemark Stable.

FOURTH RACE—A select field of eight 3-year-olds will match strides over the ¾-mile distance of the fourth. Mrs. F. A. Clarke's NEVER FADE, fleet Sun Circle colt, arrived in good condition. In his last effort in New York, the Clarke racer turned in a creditable performance and should outfoot his seven rivals. MARTHA JONES is attaining her best form and rates the place call with RUSTY, from the W. A. Hanger string, as the show possibility.

SIXTH RACE—Mrs. K. E. Hitt's entry of SUNVIR and HOT TODDY hold a decided edge over their four opponents in the mile and an eighth of the sixth event. This number is an allowance affair for 3-year-olds and upward with a $2,000. CALF ROPER is the place selection. VALENCIENNES has not raced to her last year form, but should save the minor award.

SEVENTH RACE—Eleven milers are scheduled to start in the seventh, for 3-year-olds and upward, with the claiming clause attached. AMYDALE was beaten a neck last outing by the speedy CALF ROPER and off that effort is favored to gain the decision. LAHOR, in the Jones Stock Farm's string, is a steady plater and rates the place call, with MAYA, third.

EIGHTH RACE—In the final event, 17 claimers will be dispatched over the mile and a quarter route, with WORKLESS favored to show the way. This O. Blank gelding has turned in some fair efforts and his second to Rushing last start, places the Blank 4-year-old on top. HARPOON may prove a dangerous contender. The E. B. Carpenter gelding picks up four pounds off his last winning effort and figures to force the pace. SETH'S BALLOT is given the show award, but would be closer up over a soft track.

TEXAN GETS PRO BID.

Mike de la Fuente, pitching ace of the University of Texas, has signed for a tryout with San Antonio, in the Texas League.

HUNT, CORRI ARRIVE HERE TODAY

Heavies to Work at Gerrin's Gym for Bout at Laurel.

"REDS" BARRY, local light-heavyweight pride and one of the most promising big fellows introduced in this vicinity for some years, last night was being sought as a sparring partner for "Babe" Hunt, Oklahoma giant who pairs off with Pietro Corri in the ten-round feature of the Mid-City Boxing Club's inaugural show at Laurel Wednesday night. Matchmaker Gerrin also was busily lining up a capable sparmate for Corri.

Positive confirmation that Hunt will report here at 7:45 o'clock this morning was wired Gerrin yesterday. Whereupon the enterprising Frenchman immediately long-distanced Corri's interests, insisting that the Italian-Austrian put in an appearance simultaneously.

Workouts will be launched at Gerrin's gymnasium today at 2:30 o'clock. El Kadir, Arthur Debeve and several other carefully selected leather slingers are to square off against them.

Heavyweights Capture Fancy.

Though supplemented by 32 rounds of promising milling, the heavyweight splurge continues to occupy the spotlight as the fight night nears, proving again that walloping more than speed and science captures the mob's fancy.

At 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night an army of buses supplied by the White Line Tours, Inc., will transport local enthusiasts directly from North Capitol and E streets northwest to the arena and return at a nominal cost.

Tickets for this show are on sale at A. G. Spalding & Bro., 1338 G street northwest; the New Willard Hotel, Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest; Vic Sport Shop, 716 Ninth street northwest, and Curb Lunch, 714 H street northeast.

DIXIE PIGS WIN SECTION A CAPITAL CITY LEAGUE TITLE

St. Joes Bow To Columbia In Ninth

Dixies Rout Griffith Nine, 30-9; Capitol Heights Scores.

THE Dixie Pigs clinched the championship of Section A in The Post's Capital City League, unlimited class, yesterday by swamping the Griffith-Blue Coals, 30-9, in a weird game played at Berwyn, while St. Joseph's was dropping an exciting game to the Columbia Heights nine, 7-3. Congress Heights forfeited to Ciro's Italian Villagers.

In Section B, Saks Clothiers retained their chance of winning the crown by defeating the Army Medicos, 2-1, as Capital Heights continued to win by downing the Majestic Radios, 7-3.

The Pigs, although odds-on favorites to stop the Griffs, surprised by the overwhelming score which they piled up. They collected a total of 31 hits, many for extra bases, off the combined deliveries of Benny Wormsley and "Tack" Ensor. "Huck" Stahl led the attack, in which every member of the team shared, by slamming out two home runs, two triples, a double and a single.

St. Joseph's Loses Heartbreaker.

St. Joseph's lost a heartbreaker after leading Columbia Heights most of the way by a 2-1 margin. Going into the final frame, Larry Schneider, St. Joe's pitching ace, suddenly struck a wild streak, walking the first five men to face him, which tied the score at 2-2. Bob Magee, who relieved him, forced in two additional runs with five passes and then Cody Shapiro pushed a double to right center, putting the game far beyond the reach of the losers.

Schneider's disastrous finish spoiled a great day's work, since he had allowed only three hits and had fanned twelve opposing batters in eight innings. "Shout" Taylor, who twirled for the Heights nine, perofrmed in flawless fashion, limiting the "Saints" to five hits and retiring seven batters on strikes.

Mannix, of Saks, Halts Medicos.

Saks and the Army Medicos staged one of the best games witnessed on the Soldiers' field this season. Charley Mannix, Notre Dame star, held the Sawbones at bay throughout, allowing only five hits and fanning seven. Shropshire, for the Medicos, also was effective, allowing six hits. Joe Mulhall was the only player on either side able to hit safely more than once. Mulhall and Hook drove in the Clothiers' winning tallies, while Lewis' drive produced the lone marker of the losers.

Capitol Heights led the Majestics throughout to gain the decision. The Heights team pounded the offerings of the DiNenna brothers hard to gain the decision. Errors marred the play of the losers, especially in the early innings.

Del Ray Home Runs Stop Jefferson, 6 to 1

Alexandria, Va., June 28.—Del Ray A. C. tripped Jefferson District Fire Department, of Arlington County, by 6 to 1 on the combined work of Kitty Curtiss, Vincent Curtis and Eddie Von Deck.

Kitty Curtiss held the losers to three scattered hits while Vincent Curtis came through with two home runs, driving over two and scoring two himself. Von Deck added another circuit clout.

CELTICS WIN, 2-0, OVER FRENCH'S

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., June 28.—Howard A. French Co., of Washington, bowed before the St. Mary's Celtics, 2 to 0, here this afternoon, with "Doc" Dreifus pitching in masterful form, holding the visitors to a lone single and fanning seven on strikes.

Sam Cloud, French's right fielder, came through with a single to open the first inning for the only blow obtained off the Celtics' star slabman. "Coopy" Goodwin and Bill Langford combined to give the Celtics their two runs in the fifth and eighth innings. Goodwin's double in the fifth scored Langford, who had previously singled, while Langford sent Dreifus across with a single in the eighth after the pitcher had singled.

Colliflower Hurls Well.

Eddie Colliflower, who opposed Dreifus on the mound, turned in a good performance.

"Rip" Hicks, who came through with four hits in as many times at bat for the "Saints" last Sabbath, ran his string of hits in consecutive times at bat to seven with three more today.

No-Hit Game and Takoma's 8th Win Feature County Play

THE eighth straight victory of the Takoma Tigers and a no-hit game pitched by Battles, of the Bethesda Firemen, featured the play in the Montgomery County Section of The Post's Capital City League yesterday.

The Tigers strengthened their league lead by beating the Old Colony in a pair of ten-inning battles, 3 to 2 and 11 to 7, before a large crowd at Garrett Park. Bethesda displaced German's Bakery in third place by wining the twin bill, 17 to 2 and 2 to 1, at Cabin John. It was in the second game that Battles turned in his hitless performance, errors behind him enabling the Bakers to score their lone run.

Marrosey's relief pitching and Hassler's timely hitting featured the champs' win in the first game, which saw them come from behind to tie the score with a brace of runs in the sixth inning and win out with four more in the eleventh. Pope hurled well for the leaders, but finally weakened, Dick Hughes' pitching gave the champs their second victory. He held the Colony team to seven hits and fanned fifteen. Baker's fielding and Rosser's clouting were important factors in the win.

HOW IT BEGAN

By Russ Murphy and Ray Sarnosky

TO RUN THE GAUNTLET
DURING THE THIRTY YEARS' WAR THE SWEDISH ARMY WOULD PUNISH A MAN BY MAKING HIM PASS BETWEEN TWO ROWS OF SOLDIERS, WHO STRUCK HIM WITH STICKS OR CORDS. THIS WAS CALLED "RUNNING THE GATLOOP"—"GATLOOP" COMING FROM TWO SCANDINAVIAN WORDS MEANING "RUN" AND "STREET." THE NEAREST ENGLISH WORD IN SOUND WAS "GAUNTLET" SO OUR ANCESTORS CALLED IT THAT.
Tiggy Graham
A PEAL OF BELLS
EARLY BELLS DID NOT HAVE TONGUES. PEOPLE STRUCK THEM WITH A HAMMER. THE LATIN "PELLO" MEANT TO KNOCK. WE MADE IT "PEAL."
A DAGGER OR LONG CROSS (†)
THIS SYMBOL, WHICH INDICATES A FOOTNOTE, WAS FIRST USED IN EARLY PRAYER-BOOKS TO REMIND THE PRIEST TO MAKE THE SIGN OF THE CROSS AT CERTAIN POINTS IN THE SERVICE.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

TANNIC ACID FOR WOUNDS.

So successful has been the tannic acid treatment of burns that Dr. E. Butler proposes that we use the method in treating a variety of wounds.

When applied to burns the method consists of spraying the raw surface with a watery solution of tanic acid. Or, the solution can be applied with gauze, or it can be painted on with a brush. The application is left on for a short time only, and it is made just once. The purpose is to cover the surface with a sterile layer of tanned tissue which serves to protect the underlying tissues against infection and absorption while the healing process is going on. Given such protection, the tissues take care of the healing.

In the use of the method on other wounds, a 5 to 10 per cent solution of tannic acid in water is made. A piece of gauze is saturated with this, applied to the wound, and left on for one hour. After that the tannic acid gauze is removed and the treatment is complete. A simple protective covering of plain sterile gauze is applied and the wound is left alone. Presently the wound is found to be covered by a tanned, leathery piece of tissue, under which healing goes on. When this piece of leather comes away the wound is found to be healed.

The method is not needed for ordinary small cuts. Such wounds bleed and ooze enough to wash away the infection commonly present on the skin. When the bleeding has stopped, if too much washing and handling has not been done, the wound is sealed by a blood clot, under which healing proceeds properly.

The process of healng is not so simple in more open wounds and sores such as rubs, scraped skin, scalds, wounds that can not be closed, suppurating wounds, oozing wounds, poison ivy, dermatitis, the troublesome sores on the legs of children, and varicose ulcers.

The sores on the legs of children tend to pile up thick, heavy scabs. Up to a certain point these scabs accomplish a useful purpose, in that they protect against infection and injury. But presently they are too large, thick and crusty to be helpful, and they irritate enough to offset the good they do by furnishing protection. The thinner, softer, more pliable leathery coat caused by the tannic acid is an improvement. The claim is that the leathery coat given to poison ivy sores lessens the irritation and burning. The larger shop wounds heal in a shorter time and with less suppuration and scar formation.

If half of the points of supposed excellence of this method are realized it will represent a material gain.

MIGHT DO HER HARM.

Mrs. A. N. writes: My niece, 22 years old, drinks a pint and a half of home brew every night at bedtime to gain weight. The brew is one month old. She has been drinking this for the last six months and is not gaining. Will it harm her in any way?

REPLY.

Home brew, like Noah's ark, is fearfully and wonderfully made. Many things are said to have gone in the ark. Perhaps the world would have been better had Noah been more discriminating. The same criticism applies to home brew. Drinking a pint and a half of it at night is not likely to make a woman fat. It might do her harm.

PRACTICALLY NORMAL.

E. A. writes: I had a basal metabolism test made and the reading is minus 7 per cent.

REPLY.

That is so nearly normal that the chances are you are a well woman.

MR. WALLET, I HAPPEN TO KNOW THAT AS GUARDIAN AND TRUSTEE YOU CONTROL A LARGE TRACT OF BRAZILIAN TIMBER LAND. MY NAME IS OBLONG AND I'D LIKE TO TALK WITH YOU SOMEWHERE CONFIDENTIALLY ABOUT IT.
SIT DOWN, MR. OBLONG. THIS IS AS GOOD A PLACE AS ANY.
I ALSO KNOW AS WELL AS YOU DO THAT OPERATIONS ARE PRACTICALLY AT A STANDSTILL THERE, THAT INCOME BARELY PAYS TAXES AND EXPENSES AND THAT MILLIONS OF DOLLARS IN PROPERTY MAKE PRACTICALLY NO RETURN ON YOUR INVESTMENT. I HAVE BEEN IN TIMBER ALL MY LIFE AND I CAN SHOW YOU THAT SUCH A SITUATION IS UNNECESSARY.
IT IS DUE TO WORLD CONDITIONS, MR. OBLONG. HOW WOULD YOU REMEDY IT ALL?

ARNO RIGHT IN REFUSAL TO DIE

Vanderbilt Uses Figurative Bullets in Hypothetical Gun.

tracks at New London before the Harvard-Yale boat race June 19. One invariable characteristic of pleasure fighters is that they do not keep punching and, on the average, let fly just one punch per fight, generally a right-hand swing to the face. If the swing lands, the other party goes down and makes convulsive efforts to struggle up, being careful, however, not to try too hard, and peering about him to see if the police are coming or his friends have taken the situation in hand. If either of these things has happened he then gets up and circles around at a distance, saying, "Let the big bum go, or I will knock his ears off." Cool heads then lead him off and he goes with great reluctance, muttering "I would have killed him," and his friends saying, "But you would only get into lots of trouble."

Dempsey Won't Pull Punches in Gym.

If the boys' swings miss, as happens more often than not, both parties fall into a deep embrace, panting down one another's neckband, sometimes employing their hands in body gesture, which they call their infighting, in the belief that they are similar to body punches which they have seen in the ring. In reality, however, these passes look more like efforts to pick one another's pockets, and it is this turn of events which leads to the worst horrors of pleasure fighting.

Another thing Mr. Vanderbilt should consider is the fact that Mr. Dempsey never has learned to pull a punch in the gymnasium. He ruined Midget Smith, a fine bantamweight, in one workout in Atlantic City about ten years ago, and every one who ever boxed with him, even under a pledge that the boxing was to be strictly in fun, reports that he always forgets himself. As between fighting Mr. Arno without elaborate preparation and training for the fight with Dempsey, Mr. Vanderbilt is likely to suffer less, even if licked, if he walks right up and lets fly.

There was an unhappy precedent in a literary colony in California several years ago which Mr. Vanderbilt ought to be advised of. A famous humorist out there, taking life seriously, as humorists are likely to do, once went all the way to Hawaii and trained for three months to bust an old friend on the nose because of a grievance in some ways similar to the one which has arisen in the present case.

Trained for Months To Be Slapped.

When he considered himself fit he came back, looked up his adversary and told him he was going to bust him on the nose. At that his adversary hit him a slap in the face and the fight was over. The author might have turned out thousands of dollars' worth of work during the time he spent training in Hawaii.

I may seem intent upon dissuading Mr. Vanderbilt, I am. True, the gymnasium work would give him an opportunity to wear rompers, but this boon to the individual would hardly outweigh the probability for the great majority the fight would be an awful thing. It would be far better if Mr. Vanderbilt and Mr. Arno would go back to playing Indian with a hypothetical pistol, loaded with hypothetical bullets.

"hard-hitting Americans with their destructive service;" that Borotra is as formidable as ever and that Satoh will prove a hard man to beat.

The quarter-finals in women's singles, in which Helen Jacobs, of Berkeley, Calif., is the only American survivor, will be played later in the week. The other seven survivors are Betty Nuthall, Dorothy Round and Miss M. C. Scriven, of Great Britain; Hilda Krahwinkel and Cecelie Aussem, of Germany; Mme. Rene Mathieu, of France, and Mlle. L. Payot, of Switzerland.

Miss Jacobs' quarter-final round opponent will be Miss Nuthall, while this match is expected very largely to point toward the ultimate winner of the championship, some experts predict a surprise may be forthcoming, either from Fraulein Aussem, or from the two English girls, the left-handed Miss Scriven, whose victims include Mlle. Sigart and Joan Ridley, or Miss Round, who eliminated Ella De Alvarez last Wednesday.

FAMOUS SEER

THE MAN WHO KNOWS

This strange man sees the way and tells it all. Just what your life has been, just what it will be. Tells you when and whom you will marry; whether husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false. Tells as to changes, travel, lost or absent friends, divorce, wills, deeds; whether it is best to buy or sell. He tells the good and the bad. A visit will convince you of his wonderful power. Something tells you this is the man. You feel the impulse to call. Do not delay. Copyright, Adv., 1931

Assurances that the State will construct a new road from the Mount Vernon estate entrance to the Washington-Richmond highway near Woodlawn were given a Fairfax committee following a visit with Highway Commission members.

Wade Massie and H. G. Gilmer, representing the Highway Commission, and members of the special road committee of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce, including W. R. E. Reid, Earl Saum and Herbert Williams, Supervisor Mark Turner, of Dranesville, and County Engineer F. N. Larkin, recently toured roads in the State highway system and Fairfax County.

This project, sponsored by the Mount Vernon Grange and other local organizations, was recommended to the commission by the County Chamber of Commerce and County Board of Supervisors. The new road is expected to relieve Richmond-Washington higway congestion by diverting tourist traffic from Mount Vernon over the new Mount Vernon boulevard and to Alexandria and Washington.

Members of the county committee were given the impression that improvements have been decided upon by the commission and that others will be undertaken as soon as funds are available. Other projects include widening of the Kings highway from Penn-Daw Hotel to the Lee-Jackson highway, with elimination of dangerous curves and grades. It is expected that these roads will be completed prior to the bicentennial celebration next year.

It is believed the Lee-Jackson highway through the town of Fairfax will be widened to approximately 40 feet. The State would bear the cost of 12 feet, while the town would help with the balance. Massie, who represents Culpeper district, which includes Fairfax County, said as soon as funds are allotted he plans to have the Lee highway widened from Falls Church to the junction of the Lee-Jackson highway, and that he also plans for concrete shoulders on the Chain Bridge road as soon as funds are available. The cut-off around the town of Fairfax probably will be deferred until some other improvements have been completed.

It is understood that the State Highway Commission plans to grant a hearing to a delegation from Fairfax County at its meeting next month.

E. E. Eldridge has been elected president of the Vienna Council, Order of Fraternal Americans. Other officers elected include L. B. Burkholder, vice president; Carl Thompson, assistant recording secretary; Clarence Ashby, marshal; Benjamin Beckwith, jr., warden; George Maben, inner guard; Robert Harmon, outer guard, and E. W. Frenzel, chaplain.

Robert E. Lee Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, has elected Mrs. Irene Major president; Mrs. Harry A. Fellows, first vice president; Mrs. B. E. Hummer, second vice president; Mrs. John Edwards, secretary; Mrs. A. H. Barbour, treasurer; Mrs. A. Shaver, registrar; Mrs. C. O. Turner, historian, and Miss Etta Everett, chaplain

The annual spring convention of young people of the Baltimore Conference of the Southern Methodist churches will open this morning at Massanutta Springs, Va., and continue through July 7. Representatives from Fairfax County churches have been selected as follows: Epworth League of the Chesterbrook Church, Avis Walker, Roma Saunders and Martha Kadel; Fairfax Church, Miss Bernice and Miss Reba Cupp; Dulin Chapel, Miss Martha Dietrick and Miss Minnie Shreve; Langley Church, Miss Louisa Arnold and Miss Dorothy Dodge; Andrew Chapel Church, Miss Emily Day, Epworth League, and Miss Agnes Arrison, the Sunday school.

The Daily Vacation Bible School will open this morning in the Wiehle Methodist Church at Sunset Hills, Va., and will continue for two weeks. Classes will be held from 9 until 12 o'clock each morning. Miss Dorothy Rose Hudson, a college graduate, with public school experience and religoius instruction, a parish worker and an editor and missionary, editorial movement in New York City, has been supplied as leader by the district superintendent's office in Washington. She will be assisted by the Rev. Ralph Wott and Mrs. J. R. Wiehle. Pupils will be divided into primary, kindergarten, junior and intermediate groups.

A meeting of the 4-H Club of Herndon will be held this afternoon at the home of Mrs. George R. Bready, the club leader. Mr. Foster, of the United States Department of Agriculture, will speak. Hazel Kirk, Catherine Dugger and Jean Bready will represent the Herndon Club at the State rally at the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, in July.

A poultry vaccination demonstration meeting will be held this morning at the plant of W. N. Miller, near Lincolnia, on the Lee-Jackson highway. The meeting is sponsored by the Fairfax Poultrymen's Association. Demonstrations will be given by officials of the State department of agriculture. A delegation from Prince William and Fauquier Counties is expected to be present. Fairfax is the only county in the State where the serum developed by the State is being given a practical test in combating fowl pox.

A children's day program was held yesterday morning in the Southern Methodist Church at Andrew Chapel. Songs and recitations were given under direction of Miss Agnes Orrison and Miss Marvin Sanders, who also had charge of church decorations. The music was arranged by Mrs. Willard Oliver and Roy Money. Special selections were given by a male trio composed of Roy Money, Alton Money and Willard Oliver. Cornet solos were given by John Stoy. The choir was composed of children from the first three classes of the Sunday schoool.

Divisional Superintendent of Schools Wilbert T. Woodson, of Fairfax, will attend the first conference of school superintendents which has been called by the new State superintendent of public instruction, Dr. Sidney B. Hall, for today and tomorrow. Wednesday Supt. Woodson will go to Charlottesville to the Institute of Public Affairs and attend several conferences on educational methods.

YOUNG PEOPLE END FREDERICK MEETING

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., June 28.—A sermon tonight by the Rev. John E. Briggs, pastor of the Fifth Baptist Church, of Washington, concluded the annual convention of the Young Peoplts Baptist Union, the first unit of the Maryland Baptist summer assembly, which convened at Braddock Heights Friday and will continue until July 5. The service was in charge of J. E. Lambdin, secretary of the Sunday school board of the department, Nashville, Tenn.

Today's registration of more than 500 was the largest of the convention. Reede W. Corr, Baltimora, was reelected president. Other officers elected and installed were James Trout, Frederick, vice president; Miss Elizabeth Longbottom and Miss Evelyn Jarboe, Baltimore, secretaries; B. N. Dnham, Baltimor, trasurr, and the Rev. J. W. Watts, Baltimore, general secretary and director.

The annual convention sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. W. J. McGlothlin, president of the Southern Baptist convention and president of Furnam University, Greenville, S. C., in the first Baptist Church. He emphasized the need of more work in the Southern Baptist convention to obtain effective results.

He stressed the need of praticing church teachings in business and professional life.

Following a devotional this afternoon, a leadership conference was discussed by Mrs. Lambdin.

A conference for senior, intermediate, junior and adult delegates was led by Miss Hazel McDowell, Mrs. J. B. Hill, Richmond, Va., Mr. Corr and the Rev. Watts. The training school for Sunday school workers, Maryland-District of Columbia pastors conference, study course for B. Y. P. U. workers and the Womans Missionary Union convention will begin tomorrow when about 100 more delegates are expected.

The missionary convention will be under direction of Mrs. Samuel R. Barnes, Baltimore, secretary of the union. Study groups will be in charge of Miss Flora D. Sutton, Miss Wrenda Monroe, of the W. M. U. training school, Louisville, Ky., and the Rev. W. Rush Loving, pastor of Spurgeon Memorial Baptist Church, Norfolk, and Mrs. Loving. The Rev. Dr. McGlothlin and the Rev. Dr. W. Hersey Davis, of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., will lead the conference. The Rev. T. N. Tombes, Easton, is president of the Maryland conference and the Rev. Dr. O. E. Deitz is president of the Washington conference.

FARMING TEACHERS OF VIRGINIA GATHER

V. P. I. Host to 120 Members of State Vocational Training Staff.

Special to The Washington Post.

Blacksburg, Va., June 28.—Discussions and plans for next year will be taken up in the fourteenth annual conference of instructors of vocational agriculture, which starts tomorrow at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. One hundred and twenty instructors will attend the course, which will last through Thursday.

The group will be welcomed in the morning by J. A. Burruss, president of V. P. I. Talks on the agricultural situation in Virginia and the outlook for the future will form the basis of the day's program.

Specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture, are on the program Tuesday. J. Clyde Marquis, of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, will speak of the yearly outlook material in making farm adjustment. Hutzol Metzger, of the Federal Farm Board, will talk on the present cooperative marketing program, and R. D. Maltby, Federal agent for the Southern region, will speak on the development of necessary farming abilities.

Reports of committees on part-time and follow-up work with former students, on teaching cooperative work and on athletic and agricultural work will be given in subsequent days of the four-day conference. Members of the faculty of vocational agriculture of V. P. I. and vocational instructors form those committees.

V. P. I. specialists in the different fields will give talks Wednesday afternoon and Thursday morning on new farm crops, animal husbandry and poultry. Thursday morning Dr. Sidney B. Hall, State superintendent of public instruction, will speak on qualities of leadership.

More committees will be heard from at the final meeting Thursday, and the conference will end Thursday afternoon with a final business session. A large percentage of instructors of vocational agriculture in Virginia schools are alumni of V. P. I.

Virginian Is Killed By Lightning Bolt

Charles Welsh, 36, Dies in Denver, Colo.; Body to Be Brought Here.

Purcellville, Va., June 28.—News was received here this morning that Charles Welsh, 36, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Welsh, who live near Purcellville, was struck by lightning on a golf course in Denver, Colo., yesterday afternoon, and died several hours later without regaining consciousness.

Mr. Welsh had been in business in Denver for ten years. His wife, who was Miss Elizabeth Trundle, of Washington, D. C., died two and one-half years ago. A small daughter, Betty, survives him, as well as his mother and a father, a sister, Helen, who is in Denver, and two brothers here.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed. The body is expected to reach Washington Thursday morning.

Family Narrowly Escapes Death in Bungalow Blaze

The home, a bungalow which Moore had built as temporary residence before building a more elaborate one, was destroyed, with everything in it.

They were awakened by plaster falling between their bed and the one in which the children were asleep after the fire had gained considerable headway. Mrs. Moore screamed and seized her youngest child, Louis, 2 years old, while the husband grasped the older one, Josephine, 4 years old.

They were forced to dash through a curtain of fire as the entrance to the room was blocked by flames. By the time fire apparatus arrived from Arlington, Jefferson, Ballston and Clarendon, the little home was collapsing. All that was left of it by daylight was a charred pile of bricks. Even the chimney had fallen.

FIREMEN TO DEBATE GOING TO CONCLAVE

Alexandria Department Feels at Disadvantage in Winchester Meeting.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

A meeting of the Alexandria Fire Department executive committee will be held tomorrow evening in the Snyder-Kane-Boothe Building to discuss the department's participation in the forty-first annual convention and tournament of the Virginia State Firemen's Association to be held in Winchester, Va., August 12-14, jointly with the Cumberland Valley Firemen's Association.

The call for the meeting was issued by Fire Chief James M. Duncan jr. then he learned what the Winchester committee had made a ruling that will seriously affect the local department's chances of winning any of the many prizes offered in the gigantic parade planned for the second day of the gathering, when firemen of both associations will compete.

The rule in question provides that under no conditions will companies from the same city be allowed to join and compete as one unit.

Heretofore the Alexandria companies have competed as the Alexandria Fire Department and as such have captured several prizes, making a clean sweep in last year's convention at Phoebus, Va. The membership of no one local company is sufficiently large to compete with the companies from towns that have only one company.

Chief Duncan has stated that the chances of Alexandria winning any prizes are remote under such a ruling and he wants the matter fully discussed by the local men before they signify their intention of attending, hence the need for a meeting of the executive committee, which is composed of men from each company, and they in turn have the entire membership consider the matter and rule on it

The prizes to be offered this year are the largest in the history of the association and are expected to attract firemen from long distances. The Cumberland Valley Association is composed of firemen from Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

The Crusade Union Boy Singers, composed of 30 boys between the ages of 8 and 21, and gathered from choirses in eight or ten cities in New York and New Jersey, will make Alexandria the first stop in the annual summer concert tour. They will appear in the First Baptist Church Tuesday, July 7, at 8 p. m. The public is invited.

The daily vacation Bible school will open this morning, sponsored by the Alexandria Ministerial Association, with the following committee in charge: The Rev. Percy Foster Hall, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church; the Rev. Dr. D. L. Snyder, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and the Rev. C. M. Compher, pastor of the Methodist Protestant Church.

Sessions will be daily from 9 to 11 a. m., throughout July. Mrs. Alma Robertson will be in charge of the Westminister Building School, assisted by Mrs. Thelma Broan and Miss Bernice Hammersley. At the Chapel of the Good Shepherd, Fairfax and Franklin streets, Mrs. Virginia Keithe Sullivan will be in charge, assisted by Miss Hilda Smith and Mrs. Kate Maxwell Wright.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Klipstein Harryman, widow of Dr. Harry Harryman, who died on Friday, will be held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the home, 520 Prince street, conducted by the Rev. Percy Foster Hall, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Burial will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery.

Fitgerald Council, No. 429, Knights of Columbus, will celebrate charter night on July 22 next, and at the same time observe the thirty-first anniversary of the organiaztion. Tentative plans provide for a musical program and refreshments.

The city school board will hold a meeting on Wednesday, July 1, to consider routine matters only, it is announced.

The Association for the Regulation of Commercial Highway Traffic will hold a meeting at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening at 400 South Henry street. All employes of the Southern Railway Co., the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railway Co. and the Fruit Growers Express Co. are invited to be present.

Road Asks Right To Remove Trains

Pennsylvania Claims Loss on Martinsburg and Winchester Run.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., June 28.—Authority to cancel four week-day passenger and mail trains and all Sunday trains between here and Martinsburg, W. Va., is to be sought of State public service commissions in Virginia and West Virginia this week by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Officials of the system, who were here yesterday conferring with postal and civic organization representatives, said the trains were operated almost at a dead loss, that very few people rode the trains and that mail and express business was not sufficient to justify their continuance.

It is planned to operate one train into Winchester and one out daily, except Sunday. This city is the southern terminal of the Cumberland Valley division.

WINCHESTER HOST TO LUTHER LEAGUE

Speakers From Other States Will Address Three-Day Convention.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., June 28.—Speakers from other States are on the program of the tenth annual convention of the Luther League of the Lutheran Synod of Virginia, which will convene in Grace Church here tomorrow afternoon and continue in session until Wednesday evening.

The local committee on arrangements announced today that reservations had been made for 125 delegates and that many other visitors were expected from territory within a radius of 50 miles for day and evening meetings. Many of the delegates will leave here next Thursday morning for Reading, Pa., where they will attend the national convention of the league.

The convention will be presided over by Miss Vivian Cronk, president, of Salem. The executive committee and conference presidents will hold meetings tomorrow afternoon. Miss Cronk presiding over the former and Miss Thelma Graham, field secretary, Roanoke, over the latter gathering.

Baltimorean to Speak.

The Rev. Dr. O. F. Blackwelder, pastor of Christ Lutheran Church, Baltimore, will be the principal speaker tomorrow evening at vespers, which will be in charge of the Rev. Dr. Luther A. Thomas, pastor of Grace Church here. The Woodstock Junior Choir will sing. An informal social hour, sponsored by the Winchester League, will follow Dr. Blackwelder's address.

Following a devotional service Tuesday morning, conducted by the Rev. P. L. Royer, chaplain, Bluefield, W. Va., the first business session will be held to receive reports of the year's work. An hour will also be given to a junior-intermediate rally, with address by Deaconess Pearle Lyerly, of the Church of the Advent, New York.

During the afternoon fraternal messages will be given on behalf of the synod, the women and the brotherhood, and another feature will be a contest between conference representatives on an assigned subject, decision of the judges to be announced at a banquet in the evening.

Banquet at Hotel.

The banquet at the George Washington Hotel will be addressed by the Rev. L. W. Strickler, Norfolk, Va., and Dr. Thomas, Winchester, with Charles K. Over, local league president, as toastmaster. Miss Evva Stouffer will be violinist, and Mrs. Robert F. Cline vocal soloist of the musical program. Miss Leona Peer will give readings, and devotions will be in charge of Miss Rebecca Paris, Grace Church parish workef.

Speakers on Wednesday's program include C. C. Dittmer, Brooklyn, N. Y., president of the Luther League of America; the Rev. Dr. J. J. Scherer, Richmond, and the Rev. R. H. Anderson, Roanoke, superintendent of the Virginia Synod.

Officers elected at the afternoon session will be installed at a candlelight service in the evening.

ARLINGTON WILL ASK NEW ROAD APPROVAL

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Efforts to win the county board of supervisors to acceptance of free rights of way for Washington street to be made the direct approach to the new Arlington Memorial Bridge will be made at a meeting of the board tomorrow morning, according to Robert E. Plymale, president of the Fort Myer Heights Citizens Association.

As pointed out by Mr. Plymale the Fort Myer Heights Association has for two years tried to have this street improved as approach to the bridge. The movement was strengthened three months ago by united support of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce and the County Civic Federation.

After several meetings had been held, a special committee, of which Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth is chairman, reported that free rights of way had been offered. It has developed that but one strip of land is still needed, owned by L. R. Eakin.

Within the last ten days Gloth received a letter from Judge Harry R. Thomas, counsel for Mr. Eakin, in which it is stated he is ready to donate the land if the board of supervisors will proceed with laying of a sidewalk along Wilson boulevard near Woodrow Wilson School in Fort Myer Heights.

It is pointed out in the letter that the sidewalk was promised by the board last year when Mr. Eakin gave land necessary for widening of Wilson boulevard.

Mr. Plymale says that with the new bridge rapidly nearing completion and the Bicentennial celebration next year it is imperative that some action be taken immediately for construction of an adequate approach to the bridge.

Thrifton Village Improvement League will hold its monthly meeting tonight in the parish hall of Grace Episcopal Church at 8 o'clock. Candidates for the office of trial justice of the county court, a new office created by the Legislature, have been invited to address the meeting.

Executive committee of the Arlington County bicentennial council will meet tomorrow evening at the home of Mrs. Sade Catherine Coles, 26 Preston avenue, Cherrydale, at 8 o'clock.

According to Arthur Orr, president, the committee will take up appointment of committees on projects adopted at the last meeting of the council.

Cherrydale Volunteer Fire Department closed its annual carnival Saturday night with a record crowd in attendance.

Despite the storm the crowd remained until midnight when winners in the grand prize contest were made known by Chairman Jack Spates.

Winners were: J. K. Bohaman, Washington, $100; Mrs. G. F. Mangum, Cherrydale, $75; Jean Smith, Washington, $50; R. E. Stromberg, Cherrydale, $25.

Proceeds of the carnival will be applied to the maintenance fund.

Ladies' Aid and Missionary Societies of Central Methodist Episcopal Church at Ballston will hold an all-day meeting at the church Wednesday.

Arlington Volunteer Fire Department will hold its monthly meeting Wednesday evening at the new firehouse at 8 o'clock. Final arrangements will be made for the department's annual carnival which opens the week of July 13.

Parent-Teacher Association of Stonewall Jackson School at Mulhall will serve refreshments to children attending summer classes tomorrow.

Ten Minutes Sentence Meted Out to Woman

MIDSUMMER REVISED.

AROUND this lovely valley rise
The purple hills of Enterprise.

* * * *

O, softly on yon banks of haze

* * * *

That yield a low-priced motor car.

* * * *

Thru all the long midsummer day
The countryside is sweet with hay,
In which (if chemists' minds are sound),
The makings of a bus are found;
Just where the field and forest meet
Are shrubs that yield a rumble seat;
The carburetor plants are seen.

* * * *

I WATCH the mowers as they mow
The crops for Atuomobile Row;
With even strokes a scythe each swings
To harvest rear and frontal springs;
Behind them nimble helpers run
And toss the spare parts in the sun;
The cattle graze, while warm and still
Slopes the broad pasture, basks the hill
And bright where summer breezes blow
The brake-bands and the clutches grow.

* * * *

The butterfly and bumble bee
Come to the pleasant woods to see
The wondrous workings of the Lord
(And Messrs. Hank and Edsel Ford).
Sweet woodland music sinks and swells,
The brooklet rings its tinkling bells,
The swarming insects drone and hum
A song of praise to motordom;
The squirrel leaps from tree to tree
A slave to Ford efficiency;
Across the branch it darts and cuts
To help supply the shop with nuts;
The beaver with a will intense
Is building dash-board instruments
And look! The cows in pastures green
Are being milked for gasoline.

* * * *

THE chickens in the chicken yard
Are trying very, very hard
To lay an egg which chemists may
Convert into a paint quite gay;
Close by there waves a field of rye
Which yields a varnish quick to dry,
And in the valley beets and corn
Are grown to make a motor horn.

* * * *

How good it is to see, oh man!
The crops grow on a high-speed plan;
How wonderful to see and know
All nature works on schedule so!

IZZAT SO?

"Weakfishing itself resembles stream fishing for trout in many ways. The boat is anchored in a deep channel and the bait is floated out with the tide, the captain meanwhile chumming sparingly until the fish are brought to the surface. When the big ones begin to hit, increased amounts of chum are thrown overboard."—Fishing column in the New York Herald-Tribune.

Henry Schneider Dies at Winchester

Was Retired Shoe and Leather Inspector of U. S. Army.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., June 28.—Henry Schneider, 81, retired shoe and leather inspector for the quartermaster's department, United States Army, died last night at his home here following several years' illness from rheumatic complications contracted in the service. He was previously for many years general manager of the Winchester Shoe Manufacturing Co., was the last charter member of Winchester Lodge, No. 65, Kights of Pythias, and for a long period captain of the hook and ladder company.

Mr. Schneider also served in the city council and was a member of Grace Lutheran Church. His wife, formerly Miss Ella Heiser, Baltimore, died about two years ago. Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. J. Luther Jones, Mrs. Taylor M. Rudolph and Miss Gertrude Schneider, of this city; two sons, Henry Schneider, of Chicago, and William Schneider, of this city, and two sisters, Mrs. Albert Gode, Amsterdam, N. Y., and Miss Katherine Schneider, of this city. He was born in Germany, but came to America at an early age with his parents.

Silvanus J. Macy, Sportsman, Dies

Warrenton, Va., Resident Succumbs in Capital Hospital.

Silvanus Jenkins Macy, prominent sportsman of Warrenton, Va., and Avon, N. Y., died Saturday at Mount Alto Hospital after a long illness. Mr. Macy, who was 58 years old, was a World War veteran, having served as a major in the Army remount service throughout the war.

Renowned in Eastern sporting circles, Mr. Macy was much in demand as a judge at the major horse shows throughout the East and in Canada. He maintained a stable of famous hunters at Avon, N. Y., his native home, and about four years ago established another stable at Warrenton, where he has made his home of late. Entrants from his Warrenton stables won many ribbons at local and nearby horse shows.

Surviving the sportsman are his widow, Mrs. Winifred Randolph Macy, of Warrenton, Va.; a daughter, Mrs. William Sloan, of Rochester, N. Y., and two sons, Silvanus J., jr., and Morgan, both of Avon, Genesee Valley, N. Y. Funeral services for Mr. Macy will be conducted at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. H. C. Caruth, 1613 Nineteenth street northwest, Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Interment will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Frederick Is Scene Of Library Session

25 Workers Gather for Institute on Work Problems.

Frederick, Md., June 28—About 25 Maryland librarians will hold a summer institute at Hood College beginning tomorrow and continuing until July 9, under the auspices of the Maryland Public Library Commission of the State Department of Education.

Enrollment will begin in the afternoon under the direction of Miss Adelene Pratt, Baltimore, Field Director of the State Public Library Advisory Commission, who will also conduct classes.

Other class instructors include Miss Eton, Librarian of the Public Library, Harrisburg, Pa., member of the faculty of the summer school of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, and Miss Mary Wilkinson, head of the children's department of the Enoch Pratt Free Library, Baltimore. Miss Katherine E. Dutrow, this city, assistant Librarian at Hood College, will assist Miss Pratt.

Following registration, Dr. Joseph H. Apple, president of Hood College and president of the State Public Library Commission will welcome the visitors. The instruction will include cataloguing, classification, reference, book selection and mending. Miss Pratt will come to Frederick from the annual conference of the American Library Association in New Haven, Conn.

RELIGIOUS LAXITY IN SCHOOL SCORED

Yale Dean Hits Condition Before Institute of Public Affairs.

University, Va., June 28 (A.P.).—Asserting that the public schools have drifted far toward a complete ignoring of religion and God, Dean Luther A. Weigle, of the Yale Divinity School, in the Institute of Public Affairs opening sermon tonight, placed the blame not on the infidels and atheists, but upon people who spoke in the name of religion.

He added that the schools themselves are not to blame for the situation that has been forced upon them by the quarrels and protests of the churches, or by folk who assumed to speak in behalf of the churches.

Dr. Weigle pointed out that although America is a land of religious freedom, its foundations were laid in religious faith, and quoted the United States Constitution, and constitutions of the various States, and decisions of the Supreme Court to back up his assertions. And yet, he added, "the suprising fact is that the schools of America do not accord to religion a place commensaurate with its importance as a factor in our heritage, as an expression of our common faith, and as a principle undergirding and sustaining our moral well-being."

Omission in Schools Scored.

He said the movement stripping the public schools of religion has been almost wholly negative, there being no coming together of the different religious groups for a positive reconsideration of its total trend and inevitable results, in view of the fact that "whenever a group, or even an individual, has chosen to object, on what are averred to be conscientious grounds to some religious element in the program or curriculum of the schools, that element has forthwith been eliminated, and no other religious element has taken its place.

"The ignoring of religion by the public schools inevitably conveys to children a negative suggestion," Dr. Weigle said. "They can not help but notice the omission. It is bound to discredit religion in their minds. It is natural for them to conclude that religion is negligible, or unimportant, or irrelevant to the real business of life."

"The danger is greater today than ever before just because the public schools are greater today than ever before," he added.

While expressing the opinion that sectarianism must be kept out of the schools, Dr. Weigle asserted that did not necessitate stripping the schools of religion.

Foundation of Life Measured.

"To exclude religion from the public schools of the United States is to surrender these schools to the sectarianism of atheism or irreligion," he said, as he voiced the belief that the principle of religious freedom was designed to protect religious belief and not to hinder or destroy it.

"The tacit denial of religion in our schools imperils the foundations of American life," he asserted.

Discussing proposed "character education" in the schools, Dr. Weigle said that depended upon the kind of character education that it attempted in the solution of the problem, and the motives to which it was made to appeal.

"We have a right to expect the public schools to do more than they have been doing, however," Dr. Weigle said. "They can take steps to offset or wholly void the negative suggestion involved in the present situation. They can in many States continue the reading from the Bible and the use of the Lord's Prayer—an act of corporate worship in which all religious groups might well agree to unite; and by the careful selection of materials this practice could be made to be of more religious educational value than it now is.

Truce Reverence Is Urged.

The public schools can and should in all of their teaching refer to religion naturally and wholesomely, without dogmatism, without bias, without affectation or strain.

"They should in all of their teaching manifest due reverence for God and due respect for religious beliefs. Teachers should understand that the principle of religious freedom is designed to protect rather than destroy religious belief, and that it gives them no right either tacitly to suggest or actually to teach irreligion.

"The public school can aim at the development of a citizenship which is founded upon character; and they can in their efforts to educate for character give due place to religious sanctions. They can teach that morality is more than custom, public opinion, or legal enactment; they can point to its grounding in the structure of the universe and in the nature of God. They can afford to the work of the churches and synagogues for the religious education of their children some such recognition as will declare to the children themselves in unmistakable terms that their teachers hold religion to be a proper part of the community's total provision for their education."

Crime Board Work Reported to Hoover

Luray, Va., June 28 (U.P.).—President Hoover found relief today from the heat of Washington and the negotiations over his international debt holiday proposal in the solitude of his Blue Ridge Mountain camp.

It was announced there were no developments and it was indicated none is expected before the President returns to the White House tomorrow morning.

During the day the Executive found time to go over the accomplishments of the Law Enforcement Commission with Chairman George W. Wickersham.

Six more reports dealing with various activities of criminals are expected to be concluded by the commission before its appropriations expire June 30. Some may be delayed after that date, but all are in final shape. Mr. Hoover is planning to return to Washington at sunup Monday.
